Ben Bella Acts To Seal One-Man Rule

Most Enemies In Full Retreat From Algeria

ALGIERS (AP)—Most of President Ahmed Ben Bella's enemies are in full retreat, and every new move against him seems only to tighten his one-man rule over Algeria.

Everywhere except in the Kabylie Mountains, the loyal army is in full control. Rebel leaders are being picked up one by one or are fleeing into exile. All legal political opposition to Ben Bella's "Socialist revolution" is silenced.

Even in the Kabylie there is evidence that the traditionally rebellious Berber tribesmen, weary of almost 10 years of continuous guerrilla warfare, are wavering in their allegiance to insurgent leader Hocine Ait Ahmed.

Ben Bella's popularity appears to be declining everywhere as his pseudo-Marxist policies help to plunge the nation ever deeper into economic crisis. But for the moment there is no trace of widespread popular revolt or of sympathy for fugitive rebels.

Still calling for a general uprising. Nor is there any sign of disaffection in the army, the mainstay of Ben Bella's regime.

Although he is beset by towering economic problems, Ben Bella has emerged strengthened from every clash with his hopelessly divided opponents.

Col. Mohamed Chaabani, who tried to stir the Sahara against Ben Bella, was betrayed by the same population that helped him for eight years to elude the French. His arrest roused not a stir of sympathy.

Maj. Ben Ahmed Moussa, who started a guerrilla campaign in the Oran area, was picked up in the same way. Several persons are under death sentences or awaiting trial for attacks on police and officials of the ruling National Liberation Front—FLN.

Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj, once commander of Ali Ahmed's guerrillas, has switched to the government cause and is raising a loyal militia in the heart of the Kabylie.

Raul Castro Says Cuba Ready To Bargain With U.S.

SANTIAGO, Cuba (AP)—Cuba is ready to meet the United States at the bargaining table "anywhere, anytime and discuss whatever would be necessary" to iron out problems between the two nations, Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro said today.

But for such a possible reconciliation move to succeed, Castro said, "there must be no previous conditions demanded by both countries."

Castro was asked in a news conference with foreign newsmen if this meant Cuba would abandon the five points set forth by his brother, Prime Minister Fidel Castro, in the October 1962 missile crisis, as essential conditions to be met prior to any negotiations.

ATTEND FUNERAL

Raul answered "I repeat that we would have any negotiations, they would have to be without any previous conditions."

Fidel has demanded American withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base, suspension of surveillance flights, suspension of aid to "internal subversion," lifting of the economic blockade, and suspension of "aggressive incursions against Cuba."

The younger Castro invited a group of foreign correspondents to fly with him Monday to Guantanamo, the Cuban town about 20 miles from the U.S. base.

He took the newsmen to a funeral for a Cuban soldier, Ramon Lopez Pena, who, the Cuban government charged, was killed by U.S. Marines on sentry duty at the Guantanamo border Sunday night.

Castro said there was an interest in provoking Cuba into an armed attack on the naval base but said Cuba will "continue its current policy of abstaining from the use of force against the base."

Viet Cong Attacks Government Units; Casualties Heavy

SAIGON, South Viet Cong (AP)—Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, using standard ambush tactics, crippled two and possibly three government units near the tip of South Viet Nam today in a series of battles that continued into the night. Reliable American sources said as many as 60 government troops had been killed and possibly 100 wounded in paddy fields and mangrove swamps of Chuong Thien Province, about 100 miles south of Saigon. One American was wounded. He was flown to Saigon.

SPLIT VIET NAM

The battles were fought near the mud-walled fort of Vinh Cheo, the center of a major engagement last week in which more than 200 government paramilitary personnel were either killed or wounded.

The Communists staged two ambushes on this 10th anniversary of the Geneva agreements that split Viet Nam and put the Northern sector under Communist rule.

At least 60 troops were wounded in the ambush of a battalion-sized truck convoy wending its way south from the provincial capital, Vi Thanh, to Go Quao. The spokesman said the list of dead also is expected to be high.

The other ambush was launched with an hour against two regular Vietnamese companies that raced to the convoy's rescue. These companies also were believed to have suffered heavy losses.

Both ambushes took place a few miles from the mud-walled fort of Vinh Cheo, which came under a heavy Communist attack early last week. Four civil guard companies coming to its rescue were ambushed by waiting Viet Cong, and suffered nearly 200 casualties.

Government planes and helicopters from nearby bases moved into the area immediately, a spokesman said, and strafed and rocketed the Viet Cong forces with "probably good results."

Sam Moran, special investigator for the Orleans Parish coroner said the front door of the apartment had been forced open and an unsuccessful attempt had been made to open a jewelry box.

A maid who worked for Dr. Sherman for the past 13 years said the apartment had been burglarized several times in recent years and, as a consequence, a burglar alarm had been installed.

Police said the alarm did not go off and may have been turned off.

NEW DISORDERS HIT BROOKLYN

NEW YORK (AP)—Racial rioting simmered down today in Harlem but disorder flared across the East River in the predominantly Negro Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn. A crowd of about 300 Negroes, some throwing bottles, surged through streets spread disturbances. James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, said his office had been in touch by telephone with President Johnson's aides. He said "nothing conclusive" came of the talks.

CORE set up a makeshift first aid station at its office and kept track of outbreaks of violence by walkie-talkie radio.

Acting Mayor Paul Screevane said a grand jury would consider today the case of the white detective lieutenant who fatally shot a 15-year-old Negro boy. Demonstrations after the slaying touched off the first of the riots, in which one man was killed and more than 100 injured.

The detective said he shot the boy in self-defense. Screevane said that more Negro policemen would be sent into Harlem. The police department says it has no racial breakdown of its members and assigns men without regard to race.

Police fired warning shots in the air Monday night to disperse several crowds when they appeared to get unruly.

The largest demonstration was a relatively peaceful march by about 1,000 persons across several blocks along 125th Street. At Second Avenue police fired into the air and broke it up.

Later, a crowd of about 250 formed in front of the CORE office. They cheered when Farmer said more Negro policemen would be sent to Harlem.

Police said the demonstrators apparently were acting in sympathy with racial rioters in Harlem.

Police pistol fire still shattered the air Monday night. Hundreds of steel-helmeted police patrolled the area. Major streets were again closed to traffic.

Chanting Negro demonstrators moved through the streets. Roving gangs harassed police. Looters broke store windows. A melee between police and bar patrons wrecked a tavern.

Two dozen persons, including three policemen were injured. There were a score or more arrests.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner's office reported after he was given a report on the situation by telephone that he was returning today from a European vacation.

Police officials said Harlem was markedly quieter Monday night. There were no wide spread disturbances.

Bovine Causes Disturbance In West Monroe

Shades of the Old West — with some modernization — prevailed in West Monroe this past weekend, when a Brahma cow broke loose and rammed towards town defying all efforts to "head 'em up, move 'em out!"

Instead, the animal moved toward town along Cypress street with the aid of three police vehicles — and in defiance of an oncoming bus.

The cow was first spotted by a truck driver moving toward town near the Warren Drive-Highway 80 intersection. Officer Roy Naron herded the maverick in the direction she was going — towards town.

At No. 7th and Cypress streets, Capt. Bill Pace joined the drover group, which continued down Cypress. The range rider was notified and squad car red lights were turned on to warn approaching traffic.

Several blocks later the "cow-boys" were joined by Sgt. Jimmy Burks but the white Brahma continued her downtown movements.

Despite efforts by Officer Naron with the aid of a riot gun to stop the cow at the intersection of Cypress and Bridge streets, she continued on Cypress toward the City Hall. Attempts to round up the "wild cow" were futile. In fact, the cow again came out winner, when she kicked the grill on the captain's car, then pawed the front of the vehicle.

Enough is enough, So Capt. Pace shot the angry animal with his pistol.

By the time the range rider had arrived and the remains were removed.

West Monroe Tourist Day Is Celebrated

A Greenfield, Indiana couple was chosen today to be honored at West Monroe's annual Tourist Appreciation Day.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles R. Blackburn were stopped by Patrolman Thomas Stroud on U. S. Hwy. 80 about 11 a.m., then taken to Highland Park Country Club, where they were treated to dinner by the City of West Monroe.

The annual event is co-sponsored by the city and the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce.

While the couple was eating, their car was serviced at a local station. Various West Monroe businessmen brought gifts from their firms for the Blackburns.

Dr. Blackburn is a physician and surgeon in Greenfield, and is en route to Dallas, Tex., for treatment of a broken leg. He suffered a badly shattered left leg in a March accident and has been under treatment since then. A fellow medical student of his has taken up practice in Dallas, and Dr. Blackburn decided to consult with him.

The Indiana couple expressed surprise and pleasure at the entire sequence of events since their arrival in West Monroe. "I couldn't imagine why I was being stopped," Dr. Blackburn said, adding, "but I am certainly glad now that I was."

Police Chief Johnny B. Mitchell took the couple on a brief tour of West Monroe before dinner, and brought them back to eat with a delegation of West Monroe city officials and civic and business leaders.

Plans were underway shortly after noon for a boat ride on the Ouachita River during the afternoon.

Services Set For Victim Of Local Drowning

A rosary service will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. today in the chapel of Mulhearn Funeral Home for David Charles Eberts, 31-year-old Monroe post office employee, who drowned Monday evening in the Ouachita River.

A Requiem mass will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the St. Joseph Catholic Church with the Rev. Sam Polizzi officiating.

Burial, under the direction of Mulhearn's, will be in the River-view cemetery.

Mr. Eberts, 3607 Richmond St. Monroe, was attempting to swim the river on a belt, but had become discouraged by passing boats about 100 yards from shore. He then turned around and started back toward the Monroe bank, but disappeared about 30 feet from shore.

A friend, Eddie Bowles, dove into the water, but was unable to locate Eberts and help was sought from a passing boat. The American Legion unit from the Monroe fire department was brought in and firemen, with the aid of grappling hooks, found the body in about 20 feet of water.

Mr. Eberts was a graduate of the St. Matthews Catholic School.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Eberts, Monroe; five brothers, Richard, Curt, Ralph, Warren and Robert Eberts, all of Monroe; and two sisters, Mrs. George Gabriel, New York, N. Y., and Mrs. Dewey Albritton, West Monroe.

Mrs. Montgomery died Monday afternoon in a Bastrop hospital after a short illness.

Surviving are her husband, Willis C. Montgomery of Mer Rouge; a brother, Bryam A. Boone of Nashville, Tenn.; a sister, Mrs. Charles Joslin of Nashville, Tenn.; four neices and a nephew.

Named as pallbearers were T. J. Parker, John Davis McAdams, Jack Yeldell, Charlie Cheshire, Charles White and Roy Windsor Jr.

Kenneth Hamilton

HOUSTON (Special)—Last rites for Kenneth Hamilton, 25, a former West Monroe resident, were scheduled to be held here at 1 p.m. today.

Mr. Hamilton drowned Saturday night while skin diving at San Marcos, Tex.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Zelma Hamilton of Houston; a sister, Mrs. Gloria Fife of California; a brother, Charles Hamilton of England, and his grandmother, Mrs. Martha Barnes of West Monroe.

Mrs. A. E. Davis

Funeral services will be held 10 a.m. Wednesday in the chapel of Kilpatrick Funeral Home of West Monroe for Mrs. A. E. Davis, 41, Route 3, West Monroe, who died Monday afternoon in a local hospital following a long illness.

The Rev. Wayne Fussell, pastor of the Shreveport Church of Christ, will officiate at services, and burial will be in Twin Cities Memorial Gardens, West Monroe.

A native of Hico, she was a member of the Claiborne Church of Christ in West Monroe.

Survivors are her husband, Allen Eugene Davis; one son, Allen Eugene Davis Jr.; two daughters, Brenda Ann Davis, and Becky Lynn Davis, all of West Monroe; three brothers, Percy Morrow, Englishtown, N.J.; James Marlow, Ruston, and Billy Joe Marlow, New Orleans.

Pallbearers will be Ken Maki, Nimrod Crane, Carl Brister, Royce Garman, David Reed, and R. C. Reed.

A. J. Martin

VICKSBURG, Miss. (Special)—A. J. Martin Sr., father of Miss Nona Martin of Monroe, died today after a long illness. He was 84.

Funeral services will be held 10 a.m. Wednesday at Crawford Street Methodist Church in Vicksburg. Interment will be at the Old City Cemetery here.

Besides Miss Martin, survivors include A. J. Martin Jr.,

Jackson, Miss., and Mrs. George Morris and Mrs. Grace M. Bates, both of Vicksburg.

Tatum Infant

Carl Nathan Tatum, two-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tatum, 204 Leachman, died around 8 a.m. today at a local hospital.

Funeral services will be held 2 p.m. Wednesday at Riverview Cemetery with the Rev. Floyd Pate officiating. Burial will be under direction of Mulhearn Funeral Home.

Survivors besides the parents are maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith, Monroe; paternal grandfather, B. C. Carson, Yuba City, Calif.; maternal great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Evans, Mangham.

Fleet Explores

Viet War Zone

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The U.S. Navy's powerful 7th Fleet is exploring ways of contributing to South Viet Nam's war against Communist guerrillas, the fleet commander told reporters aboard his flagship here today.

Vice Adm. Roy L. Johnson, who took command of the fleet last month, said he was in Saigon partly to discuss with Lt. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, ways of heightening the 7th Fleet role.

Johnson declined to go into detail, but said his warships had the capability, for example, of blockading any port in the South China Sea. The comment came in response to a question as to

Eleven Negroes Are Booked Here

Eleven Negroes, five of them juveniles, were booked Monday for various charges when they refused to leave three branches of the Ouachita Parish Library after being asked. The incidents occurred at the main library, 1800 Stubbs Ave., West Monroe branch, Cypress street, and the Anna Meyer branch, Jackson St., Monroe.

Booked for contributing to the delinquency of juveniles and disturbing the peace were Bessie Dill, 20; Diane Gordon, 18; William L. Thomas, 19; Larry Edwards, 17; Charles Presley, 25; and Mapeire Jeanne Smith, 22, all of Monroe.

The five juveniles, who refused to give authorities their names, were placed in the parish detention home. The six Negroes were being held in the Ouachita parish jail in lieu of bonds.

Stennis Advises Mississippians To Obey Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., says the civil rights bill must be complied with until repealed, modified or ruled unconstitutional.

"First and foremost," he said, "we must maintain law and order in our state. Mississippians have always been law-abiding citizens. Should our state become the battleground of lawlessness, violence and bloodshed everything will be lost."

Stennis, who described the law as harsh and extreme, said several major sections should be held unconstitutional and "would be so held by any fair-minded court." The constitutional issue already has been raised in a federal court case in Atlanta, he noted.

If the law is upheld by the courts, he said, "We must carefully build a national sentiment that will eventually bring either its repeal or major modification."

Businesses and industries must continue to operate, he said, and this would be virtually impossible in an atmosphere of constant tension and lawlessness. Violence, he added, will not solve the problems but will increase them and "we must maintain law and order."

College students and others entering Mississippi from different parts of the nation have compounded the difficulties, Stennis said, and the group can accomplish no good purpose. He said he has urged them to leave.

King To Aid Newly Formed Freedom Party

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King comes to this racially troubled state today to aid the newly formed Mississippi Freedom Democratic party in its drive to unseat the all-white regular Democratic delegation to next month's national convention.

Civil rights leaders said Dr. King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership conference, would spend at least five days in the state, speaking at mass rallies in Jackson, Greenwood, Meridian and Vicksburg.

Another Negro leader, James Farmer, the Texas-born national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, is scheduled to arrive in Mississippi later this week to boost the Freedom Democratic party movement.

Even before the formal announcement organizing the Freedom Democrats Monday the group had received assurances from regular Democratic delegations in New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Oregon, California and Colorado of support on the floor of the Democratic National Convention which begins Aug. 24 at Atlantic City, N.J.

Victoria Gray, a Hattiesburg Negro housewife, said the party was formed because Mississippi Negroes haven't been able to vote in sufficient numbers to force a change in the regular Democratic party structure.

'Too Many Horns' Honor Jazz Great

NEW YORK (AP)—The sounds were out of the past and so were many of the players. But the notes were strong, and so was the rhythm that vibrated through Carnegie Hall, at a steady four beats to a bar, into the early hours today.

At midnight, some of the finest practitioners of the art of jazz gathered to pay homage to Eddie Condon, the high priest of their calling.

The musicians had a ball. So did the customers who filled most of the concert hall. But Condon didn't dig it—at least not all of it.

Sick and destitute, the Indiana farm boy who grew corn but never played it remains uncompromising in his opposition to big band music.

Writer Richard Gehman, who recruited talent from across the country for the benefit performance, reported an exchange with the guest of honor.

"Eddie, guess who I've got lined up for the show? Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd."

"Hell," said Condon, "there won't be any room for the customers."

Eddie, for 40 years an unequivocal proponent of the music most people call "Dixieland"—"We just call it music," he once said—also objected to another big band, Bob Crosby and remnants of his Bobcats.

"How come all those horns," he complained. "That's too d--- many horns."

Herman and his mob got first call on the program—"We got to get back and end bar at the Metropole," he exclaimed.

He was well received to say the least. But from the moment the Herd departed and Jimmy McPartland jiggled his trumpet to send a six-piece combo off on "At the Jazz Band Ball," it was a family affair, strictly a reunion of the society of Chicago expatriates, circa 1925.

Proceeds of the concert go to Condon to help pay for three operations. But it wasn't charity. It was tit for tat.

Because it was Condon, ever the defender of the faith, who carried many of these men through the least of their days. In the 1940s, when the jazz craze had conquered the land, he opened Manhattan saloon featuring Dixieland.

If the non-conformists couldn't work, at least they could work out.

So they came Monday night to pay their respects—Zutty Singleton, Pee Wee Russell, Red Allen, J.C. Higginbotham, Willie (the Lion) Smith, Jack Lesberg, Cutty Cutshall, Yank Lawson, Bobby Haggard, Gene Schroeder, Bobby Hackett and Peanuts Hucko.

There was "the name's Mercer, John, out of Savannah, G.A." but now out of Hollywood.

There was George Wettling, who shared Condon's shame the one time they both took a dance band's dollar. That was when they also shared one pair of blue suede shoes. Condon wore the right; Wettling the left. That was all the audiences could see.

There was the incomparable Billy Butterfield, who brought the crowd to its feet with "West End Blues," and didn't have to make like Armstrong, to do it.

But the big women were when Condon sat down to play. Not for long. Condon never sits for long.

Dismissing his crew with "there's a cafeteria around the corner," Condon introduced Bud Freeman and disappeared.

Scranton Back On Wilderness Road

OLD FORGE, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania turned to the wilderness trails of this Adirondack resort today to relax from his vigorous but unsuccessful campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Scranton, his wife and their four children arrived at Old Forge Monday. They were in seclusion behind the gates of the exclusive Adirondack League Club's 9,000-acre preserve before newsmen found out their plane had landed at Old Forge airport.

EDUCATION MAIN HANDICAP

'Little People' Meet In Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—An organization devoted to elevating little people to new heights is holding its sixth annual convention in Phoenix.

Some 125 delegates are registered for the five-day convention of the Little People of America.

While they may be small in size—members must be 4-feet-10 or under—they have a big program.

One of their goals is to help the "Little Littles," their name for the sub-normal size children of both little people and big people.

"Education is one of our main problems," said organization President Bob Brower Monday. Brower, one of the biggest of the Little People at 4 feet, 10 inches, is comptroller of a large department store in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"We are not handicapped to the point we should be put in handicapped schools," he said.

Brower explained that many schools for the handicapped run only through the eighth grade. Then, Brower said, the dwarf or midget youngster often is taken out of the sheltered atmosphere and thrown into a regular high school where he must face the stares and sometimes cruel remarks of new classmates.

One of the programs of the organization is to work with full-sized parents of "Little Littles." Formation of an auxiliary of big people is under consideration.

In addition to trying to promote the integration of "Little Littles" into the big world, the organization also has helped place about 20 of these children in the homes of Little People.

"We feel we have to adjust to the world, rather than the world adjust to us," said Brower in explaining the philosophy of the 1,500-member organization. "Some of our members hold highly responsible jobs."

Shuman Deplores Shutdown Of Cotton Exchange

BATON ROUGE (AP)—President Charles B. Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation said today closing of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange shows deterioration of the market price system in this country's agriculture.

He told more than 1,100 delegates attending the annual state Farm Bureau convention.

"In view of the takeover of the cotton industry by the architects of government supply management, the closing of the New Orleans exchange should have come as no surprise. A market can only exist as long as it has a function to perform and there is business to trans-

act. "For all practical purposes, the government has taken over the cotton business and the passage of the administration's new cotton program was the final straw."

"The unnecessary and costly tragedy of the drastic deterioration in the cotton situation in the last three years is due in large part of the blunders of Secretary of Agriculture Freeman in administering the 1958 agricultural act as it is related to cotton."

He said an "expensive new patchwork of subsidies which will increase costs to taxpayers, restrict efficient production and encourage the continuation of high cost operations, fails to provide a sound basis for confidence in the future of the cotton industry."

"It is obvious," he added,

"that we are going to continue to have trouble in agriculture as long as the planners insist on trying to substitute government management for the operation of the market system."

There is no question, Shuman said, that farmers are turning away "from these programs as evidenced by the rejection of the wheat certificate scheme in the 1963 referendum, and the low signups both in the new wheat program and in the optional features of the new cotton program."

President James D. Graugnard of the Louisiana federation said "all of us are very concerned about the future of agriculture in America and in which direction we are going."

"Which way will it be," he asked, "more government pricing, compensatory payments and directives from Washington—or a more free agriculture?"

Legality Of Defense

When conditions of lawlessness prevail, an unhealthy situation develops where persons feel they must take the law into their own hands.

This happened recently, not in a western vigilante group, but in New York City. In this particular case, the condition of lawlessness came in form of an attempted criminal assault.

A number of such assaults have not been stopped while still in the "attempted" stage. Catherine Genovese, for example, was stabbed to death during three attacks over more than a half-hour period last March 13.

So Arlene Del Fava, a secretary, decided the defense of her own person had been placed upon her own devices. After all, many persons in Miss Genovese's neighborhood — estimates say as many as 38 — heard her cries for help and did nothing.

"I didn't want to be another Kitty Genovese," Miss Del Fava said at a preliminary hearing of her case. She had been arrested for carrying a switchblade knife.

Miss Del Fava, a five-foot, 95-pound brunette, not only had carried the knife since she learned of the March incident. She had to use it. While walking home after visiting the World's Fair with a girl friend, she reached a point about two blocks from her apartment when a man grabbed her around the legs and tried to drag her into the shadows of a building. She then reached into her purse, drew out the knife and snapped open its long blade. She cut her attacker and he jumped back and fled.

Shortly afterwards, a 20-year-old Navy apprentice fireman was arrested when he appeared at a hospital for treatment for wounds on his back and left side. He was charged with felonious assault and attempted rape.

But New York also has the Sullivan law, a 53-year-old state felony statute designed to keep dangerous weapons out of the hands of criminals. Since the switchblade knife fits the category of a dangerous weapon, Miss Del Fava was also arrested.

Immediately after her preliminary hearing last week, the assistant district attorney asked the Queens Criminal Court to postpone her case so that a grand jury could hear the evidence.

Judge J. Wolfe Chassen called the move a "wise decision" and granted the postponement petition.

The sailor was also released on bond and the date was set for his hearing so as to coincide with the new hearing for the secretary.

This is a particular case reflecting the lawlessness in the larger cities of our nation. It also reflects the various measures citizens must take in the line of self-defense, considering present conditions.

Tear gas pencils and purse pistols are advertised in the Washington, D. C., newspapers. While such protective measures are not as extreme as switchblade knives, they nonetheless show that public sentiment has turned away from confidence in the law enforcement agencies and more in the direction of individual responsibility.

Too often, such assailants as those who attacked the late Catherine Genovese and the alleged attacker of Miss Del Fava have been cleared for lack of evidence, improper arrest, and psychological reasons. As a result, confidence in the law has suffered.

Miss Del Fava's case rates national attention because it places a basis question before the jury comprised of every thinking American: who is the offender, the attacker or the person who defends himself with an illegal weapon?

The political climate has for too long leaned in favor of what society normally considers the offender. This has had its affects on court decisions as well as on citizens' reactions.

Just such situations caused Senator Goldwater to decry "moderation in the pursuit of justice" as no virtue in his nomination acceptance speech.

Aid Not Appreciated

Louisiana's largest city, the port of New Orleans, is one of the United States' leading gateways to Latin America. As a result, we are more concerned, perhaps, than other points in the country as to the peace and economic well being of the neighboring nations to our South.

So we are likely to be disappointed when we see the negative results of U.S. aid to some of these countries. The rioting in Panama earlier this year served as an example. The following account from Chile also serves as a case in point.

During 1963, the United States sent $135,300,000 to Chile in aid under the Alliance for Progress program. During 1962, that same country received $136,400,000.

What do certain spokesmen for the Chileans have to say about this? Are they grateful?

To get a more complete answer to such questions, we might go back a few years to pick up the thread of how Chileans feel about the United States. Certainly as individuals, there are many citizens of that nation who have kindly feelings towards individuals and groups in the United States. There are common interests in many activities ranging from sports to profit.

But one woman news columnist from Chile visiting our Mid-South several years ago criticized the United States for failing to help build a new electric power plant in the Chilean capital.

According to her story, Chilean cattlemen who became wealthy during World War II had moved into the capital. As a result of their new homes and appliances, the city power system had become overloaded.

When asked why these new dwellers were not taxed more heavily in order to improve the power facility, the woman journalist answered that the United States had given money to everyone else, why not to Chile also.

This incensed comment came before the Alliance for Progress and affords us a point from which to view Chilean feelings prior to the time large sums of U. S. aid money were sent there.

Now, with Chile ranking first per capita among South American nations receiving Alliance for Progress aid, statements from the leading contenders for the presidency in that country are revealing.

Dr. Salvador Allende, candidate for the Socialist-Communist Party bloc, says the alliance is "of such little effect that we do not consider it an essential factor in our development."

Then Chilean Senator Eduardo Frei Montalva, candidate for the country's Christian Democrats, has said the Alliance for Progress is "inoperative" there.

Broken down to the per capita level, the funds from the United States come to some $17 per person each year. But this presents a misleading picture. The alliance funds are intended to assist in major projects and add to the budgets of recipient nations.

But the Chilean candidates do not choose to look at it from this angle. They still want to criticize the United States, so they warp the statistics to the per capita level and do so in their campaign speeches.

Meanwhile, Chile, like so many other Latin American countries, has not taken action to improve its own tax structure. Government officials and large estate owners have lined their pockets and have made many investments abroad rather than plowing their earnings back into the Chilean economy.

Now, the political parties are pointing to nationalization and swinging leftward in their thinking.

It seems Chile, like so many other countries on the receiving end of U. S. aid, does not wish to appreciate it. Apparently, we have made the mistake of thinking we can help other nations to grow by presenting them with portions of our harvest. It's not that simple.

Texas Congressman Complains Of 'Devious Lobbyists'

By BASCOM TIMMONS

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jim Wright, Dem.-Texas, has a complaint: "All this week the halls of Congress have been lined with the most devious of lobbyists. By far they overshadow any pressure group I have seen in my 10 years in the House. They stop you outside your office, they catch you in the street, they stop by your table at lunch. And to show the extremes to which they will go, they come onto the floor of Congress itself. Who are these rascals? Congressmen themselves. They're pushing flowers. It's all due to the attempt of Congress to determine what flower shall be deemed fairest in the land and be named our National Flower. And many a Congressman has become a stalking tiger, in hopes of gathering support for his state's favorite bud. I can assure you there is nothing so spectacular as a Congressman turned lobbyist. He will rush at you like a bull and pin on his particular flower and then dart away like a sparring fencer, extolling the merits of its buds as he goes. This week I have worn the flowers of a dozen states, smelled the fragrances of hundreds of blossoms and listened to the horticultural exhortations of many Congressmen. Ahem. Now I'd like to talk to you for just a little while about the blue-bonnet or the yellow rose . . ."

lives in nearby Kensington, Md., and the Maryland State Highway Department was offering him a hefty piece of change for his back yard which they need for a road-widening project. "There is no reason to be embarrassed. Go ahead and accept the offer," Whitton told the employee who happens to be Joseph M. O'Connor the nation's chief investigator of fraud in right-of-way land purchases.

A GROUP of reporters clustered around Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois asked the Republican floor leader if he expected "strong Senate resistance" to the House - passed bill granting a $7,500 pay increase to congressmen and senators. Before answering Dirksen emphasized there is a difference "between strong and noisy" resistance and then gave an example. "There was an old man who kept a bottle under a board in his well," he related. "For years he used to slip out in the well and take a nip unbeknownst to his trusting wife. But one day he fell sick and couldn't get to the well so he called his wife and uttered this plea, 'You know,' he said to her, 'all our lives we've been teetotalers. Now I've got a bottle of strong medicine under a board out in the well and I want you to go and get it for me. And, dear, no matter how much I resist, I want you to make me take that strong medicine.'"

INTO FEDERAL Highway Administrator Rex Whitton's office the other day walked one of his employees with an obvious problem. It turned out the man

Revenue Service now that they are installing computers with a number for every taxpayer. The other day, M. L. McHugh, a Veterans Administration office manager who retired after 41 years service, returned to VA headquarters for a visit. He was shown an electronic brain that could find any veterans' file number within seconds. As a test, he requested his own number. While the machine clicked and whirled, he confided to a friend he really didn't have a VA number because he had never used any VA service. Then the machine produced a number assigned to McHugh in 1931 by a VA hospital in South Carolina where he had once registered but never received treatment. While McHugh had forgotten the incident the machine hadn't.

TRADITIONALLY, when a portrait is rendered of the new chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee to hang in the committee offices the tab is picked up by American Legion members from the chairman's home state Rep. Olin Teague of Texas, the present chairman, has given it a new twist. He asked the four veterans lobbyists to split the cost evenly — among the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans and the World War I Veterans. The latter group might well have been reluctant contributors. They have been feuding with Teague for years because he has kept bottled in committee a massive piece of pension legislation they sponsored.

THIS MIGHT be a tip-off to anyone who thinks he can escape the clutches of the Internal

Aircraft Plant Compromises Labor-Principle Fight

By HOLMES ALEXANDER

SANTA MONICA — Some people don't even like to wear badges," the man was saying. I had come here from the GOP Convention to get something better than the tiresome yak about "freedoms" and the meatless talk on the bare bones of political "morality."

It was the right place to come because in some three decades prior to 1962 the high-principled, pioneer plane - maker, Donald Douglas, had refused to sign a compulsory union contract that would force workers to pay dues and toe the mark for the Labor bosses. But in that year, for reasons partly patriotic and partly practical, the Douglas Aircraft Company found a compromise called the "agency" shop — of which more later.

AS IT happened, both the company's spokesman and I were wearing badges. His was a security pass. I wore two emblems one to get into the plant and the other a Convention Press pass that I'd left on my lapel. The idea that our "freedoms" were infringed by being forced to wear these tags as a condition of employment seemed far-fetched, but it's a fact that many Americans are annoyed or outraged by any sort of control or compulsive-membership — and it's part of our libertarian code to respect these sensitive feelings.

Well, in philosophy more so than in physics, there is always the theoretical chance of an irresistible force meeting an immovable body. Something had to give when the company's Industrial Relations team bumped head on into the Union bargaining for the International Machinists and the United Auto Workers. The company stood on its principle — no compulsion.

THE UNIONS, sparked by Walter Reuther, contended that non-members got all the benefits of "Union security" and were "free riders," but the decisive phase of the battle was played out in Washington. Arthur Goldberg, now a Supreme Court Associate Justice, was Secretary of Labor and had been this generation's most brilliant, forceful Labor lawyer with a long winning streak of contracts for compulsory Union membership. At Reuther's shoulder stood President Kennedy who captained the American missile race against Russia. The practicalities were that the company didn't want to give up business to the rest of the industry, didn't want to lose the skilled workers who might quit rather than be forced into Union membership, didn't want to risk a directed verdict from the government, but didn't want to retreat from a principle, either.

OUT OF the soul-searching came the "agency shop" contract, the first of its kind in the aero-space industry. There was some give and take, but the "immutable" position of the company and the Unions held firm. The company protected the conscience of the minority of workers who refused to "wear a badge" of unwilling membership. Instead of joining a Union, these workers paid a fee for benefits received. But the service fee did not bind any worker to follow the political or ideological rule of the Union-majority, nor to join picket lines, nor to be subject to fines, assessments or discipline of any sort. The Unions won out by getting the extra money and retaining their bargaining position.

Not everybody was wholly satisfied. A few "extreme" individualists, conscientious objectors to the end, gave up their jobs rather than pay the fee. Viewed statistically, which is to say heartlessly, the net loss of workers was "only" 25, some of whom may have been ready to retire anyhow. Of the workers at this plant 17,000 allow the company to take their Union dues out of their pay envelopes, 5,000 insist upon remitting directly to the Union, and about 25 stubbornly force the company to come around and collect. This wide freedom of choice costs money in bookkeeping, but liberty never comes cheaply.

THE WORLD of labor - management is not perfectly comparable to the realm of politics, yet there is much in common. We can be grateful that "morality" is still such a strong factor in our American affairs. Every form of compulsion is repugnant to us as a nation. Every minority deserves our serious and diligent protection, even though we believe in majority rule. And some of the time — perhaps, most of the time — we have the wisdom to find a third solution rather than stand by and watch the smash-up of two absolute forces rushing together on an "either-or" collision course.

How To Keep Well

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

LUMPY PALM
A French surgeon, Baron Guillaume Dupuytren, was consulted by a wine merchant with a peculiar contraction of the ring and little fingers. They had curled up gradually until the tips were touching the palm and he could not straighten them.

Dupuytren had nothing to guide him, because the condition never had been described. Surgery was suggested because the fingers could not be straightened by force. The operation must have been successful because shortly thereafter, a coachman had the same type of surgery. All this took place more than a century ago and the disorder is known as Dupuytren's contracture.

The typical deformity usually begins as a small nodule in the palm of the hand. The initial tumor spreads gradually, often for years, before it begins to pull down on the fingers. On the surface, Dupuytren's appears to be a contraction of the tendons, but this is not so. It is the fibrous tissue below the skin of the palm that is involved.

We know the disturbance is hereditary. Sixty per cent of male victims and 20 per cent of female sufferers develop it before age 45. It also may develop after age 75 (1 in 20), which makes it difficult to study from the genetic point of view. Thus a family history of the contracture is not obtained when a potential victim dies at age 50 to 60 from a heart attack or cirrhosis of the liver.

The disease is likely to be unusually severe when it develops early in life. In such cases there is likely to be a strong hereditary tendency.

Surgery is the best treatment. The skin of the entire palm and the fascia must be removed (palmar fasciectomy), especially in the younger person, to avoid recurrences. This procedure is recommended when the contractures are painful or the deformity interferes with the use of the rest of the hand. EXERCISES AND CRAMPING

A. S. P. writes: I have a small but aggravating problem. I like to exercise—and need to—but whenever I stretch my legs I get horrible cramps in my feet and legs. Do you know the answer?

REPLY
More exercise, but try not to overstretch the muscles. I assume you are taking enough salt. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on specific exercises for the feet and legs for victims of cramps in the lower extremities.

INFECTED BLOOD
H. K. writes: Is serum hepatitis from a blood transfusion the same as hepatitis from a virus?

REPLY
Yes. The victim receives blood from someone who had viral hepatitis—usually within 12 months.

SELDOM ADVANTAGEOUS
R. R. G. writes: Is sleeping with the feet higher than the head advantageous?

REPLY
No. This sleeping posture helps occasionally when the legs are swollen or the veins inflamed.

SURGERY, AS A RULE
M. P. writes: Can an enlarged ovary be treated any other way than by operation?

REPLY
There are various reasons why the ovary enlarges but the majority require surgical removal.

THICKENED NAILS

Poor circulation is the most common cause. TODAY'S HEALTH HINT— Stop and rest frequently when traveling long distances.

Scranton Burned All Bridges

By FULTON LEWIS

SAN FRANCISCO — It is clear that the Pennsylvania governor may have nailed shut his political coffin. His performance here was so pathetic that party leaders, liberal and conservative alike, agree it is unlikely that he will ever again play a dominant role in national affairs.

Scranton will return to Harrisburg and the governor's mansion. In succeeding months his influence at home is bound to ebb. He is prohibited by law from running for a second term in 1966.

There will be no Senate seat for Scranton to seek in that year. It is doubtful that he will — or could — run for the house seat he vacated two years ago when he sought the governorship. It would be a step down for the governor, a one-time presidential aspirant, and there could be opposition from local Republicans who are satisfied with the party regular who now occupies Scranton's old seat.

THERE WILL be no openings at Foggy Bottom. And Henry Cabot Lodge can report that state department posts in a Democratic administration are of little aid to a Republican politician.

Scranton's only political hope is that Goldwater suffer an ignominious defeat and that GOP candidates are humbled at every level. The Pennsylvania governor might then argue, "I told you so."

Were Goldwater to lose badly, however, it is doubtful that party leaders would turn to Scranton. His reckless attacks at the Republican convention would have contributed to Goldwater's defeat.

SCRANTON LACKS a personal following of any significance. Those "moderates" who backed him at San Francisco will look to others for leadership. Ohio Rep. Robert Taft Jr. would be catapulted into national prominence by a Senate victory this fall.

Chicago industrialist Charles Percy could inherit one mantle of party leadership by capturing the governorship of Illinois. Michigan Gov. George Romney would gain added luster by winning re-election.

For Scranton there will be no opportunities to demonstrate that San Francisco was an off-week. The image built here — that of a reckless, desperate politician — will dog him for the rest of his political life.

Scranton is not the only Pennsylvanian whose armor was tarnished at this convention. His chief strategists — Sen. Hugh Scott, Attorney General Walter A. Scott, and Chief Justice James A. Moore — committed severe political errors. And the Keystone State, once again, came out of a national convention with nothing. In 1940, it will be recalled, the Pennsylvanians were caucusing when Wendell Willkie was nominated. And in 1952 they waited far too long to hop aboard the Eisenhower bandwagon.

NOMINEE Goldwater will make the captive nations of eastern Europe a major campaign issue. He will strike hard at administration aid that serves only to entrench Communist tyrants

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Do you preach and believe in the virgin birth and other miracles in the Bible?

ANSWER: Yes, I preach all that the Bible plainly teaches and I believe these things are very important because they are a part of God's Word. Again and again I see that God honors His Word when it is believed, preached and lived. The miraculous and supernatural in the Bible set it apart from all other books. Why should not the God of the universe act in supernatural ways? As a matter of fact, without the supernatural, the Bible would be much harder to believe. As for the virgin birth; it is a perfect explanation of the face of the incarnation. By incarnation we mean that God actually became a man that He might redeem mankind back to Himself. The virgin birth is a logical explanation of how God brought about this marvelous provision for man's salvation. As for the miracles which Christ performed, remember that He actually was the creator of the world in the first place. The Bible tells us that: "All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made." When He came into this world to live and die and rise again from the dead, it was only logical that many of His acts would be miraculous. I like to think too of His miracles being His passport, to prove that He is the Son of God. Let me suggest that you accept the Bible record in simple faith. God will honor that faith and bring peace to your soul.

Tax Collections Reach All-Time High In State

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana tax collections in the last fiscal year reached an all-time record of $495,943,019. State Revenue Collector Ashton Mouton announced Monday.

Collections last June, final month of last fiscal year, amounted to $41,815,849, up $5,157,167.

The annual increase, Mouton said, "is six per cent over last year and indicates a healthy growth for the state's economy."

The increase was just about what state fiscal officials had expected. Budget estimates were that the increase would amount to about $31 million.

Largest single source of state tax revenue was the severance levy, supporting education, which brought in $172,156,439, up $9,105,923.

Second highest collections were for the sales tax, which brought in $104,747,823, an increase of $7,817,897.

"I think that this increase in the collections for the sales tax," Mouton said, "more than anything else, shows that Louisiana's economic climate and growth is in very good shape and the state and its people are increasingly prosperous."

Gasoline tax collections reached $69,608,476 for the year, up $3,331,385.

Other key collections showed: income taxes, including taxes currently being withheld, $40,840,843; tobacco tax collections $29,806,836; corporation franchise taxes $16,019,799, and the motor vehicle registration license fees, $15,361,501.

Mouton said: "Our increased income tax collections which are used for homestead exemptions are also a good barometer of the overall prosperity of the people of Louisiana, as well as the efficiency of our department with its computers and electronic equipment which we use to handle the collections."

Sen. Goldwater Gets Backing Of Democrats

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Articles of incorporation for "Conservative Democrats for Goldwater" were filed in the office of Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Monday.

The charter was filed by Fred Huenefeld Jr. of Monroe, who was one of the campaign leaders for former Gov. Robert Kennon in Kennon's unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in last winter's primary.

"We are Democrats who are interested in good, conservative government," Huenefeld said. "Our sole purpose is to actively work for the election of Barry Goldwater as President of the United States."

"We've run into a lot of people in this state who were unwilling to take a public stand for Goldwater except through an organization like this," Huenefeld said.

"Now we're going to be able to get Democrats in every parish of Louisiana organized behind Goldwater: so we can help get him elected president."

Huenefeld added, "Response has been terrific. Thousands of people are 100 per cent behind this organization."

'PONDERS' TALK WITH LBJ

Goldwater Hopes To Ease Tension

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater is considering a call to President Johnson—the man he hopes to oust from the White House—for a campaign pact aimed at keeping civil rights tensions "a completely quiet question."

The Republican presidential nominee said he doesn't want the campaign ahead to inflame "this tension that exists," and added one way of easing it would be stricter enforcement of laws guaranteeing the right to vote.

At the White House, press secretary George Reedy said Johnson "would not do anything to incite or inflame tensions" during the presidential campaign. He said Johnson would give serious consideration to a meeting with Goldwater if the Republican nominee formally proposes one.

Goldwater said he would "ponder" making the formal call.

The Arizona senator talked about civil rights at a surprise news conference in Chicago Monday as he headed for a Washington homecoming soured by the jeers of self-styled American Nazis.

Their chants of "We want Rockwell!"—George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi party—interrupted Goldwater's appearance on the rostrum at an outdoor rally at Washington National Airport. One of the group said they were protesting what he called Goldwater's "liberal record."

The senator's parting shot: "They can have Rockwell or any body else they want. I'll take my chances with the majority of Americans who are Americans."

Cites Finances Gov. McKeithen Vetoes 5 Bills;

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. John McKeithen Monday vetoed five bills, including two calling for junior colleges at Jennings and in St. Tammany Parish.

McKeithen said financial conditions do not permit establishment of the colleges. He vetoed a bill to set up a trade school in St. Tammany Parish on the grounds that the bill was improperly drawn and therefore unconstitutional.

A bill to require the election of parish school board members because of population increase was vetoed because, the gover-

Short Course Approval Given By Boys Group

Approval was given by the board of directors of the West Monroe Boys Club today for both the director and assistant director to attend short courses coming up in the next two months.

At a 7 a.m. session, the board agreed to send Executive Director Lloyd Williams to a course at New York University, which will run Sept. 14 through Oct. 9.

Meanwhile, Assistant Director Barry White was chosen to attend a one-week course in Wichita Falls, Tex., during August.

Both sessions will help the men become better acquainted with various aspects of Boys Club work.

Judge John F. McCormick, club president, today announced that two new officials had been elected at this morning's meeting.

Richard D. Jones was named as a board member to replace Bill Denton, who moved from town recently; and Wood Sers was chosen as the new secretary, replacing Buster Crowley, who resigned.

4-H Certificates In Union Noted

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Twelve Union Parish 4-H Club members were awarded certificates at the annual short course held in Baton Rouge.

The certificates were given to: Jimmy Long, Nancy Wilson, Connie Jane Risinger, Ronnie Nolan, Linda Farrar, Glenda Hudson, Rickie Silmon, E. Walter Wilson, Judy Silmon, Sandra Barrett, Terry Dumas and Donnie Wade.

Wisner Break-In, Theft Of Auto Are Investigated

WISNER (Special) — The Wisner Drugstore was broken into Monday night and a quantity of nerve medicine and paragon was taken, according to town marshal Eldon Brown.

Entry was gained by tearing a hole in the roof and exit was by the back door.

Night marshal J. M. Gordy noticed the rear door open at 2:30 a.m. and discovered the break-in. The safe had been tampered with, but was not open.

AT HEARING

Better Access To News Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sam Ragan, president of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association, argued today in favor of a bill designed to give the press better access to public information.

Ragan, executive editor of the Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer and the Raleigh Times, testified before a Senate subcommittee on administrative practice and procedure.

"Too often the secrecy stamp is used, I fear, to cover up bureaucratic blunders and mistakes, or merely to serve the timidity and fears of agency heads," Ragan said in a prepared statement.

He said the administrative Procedures Act of 1964 would "correct loose language" of the 1946 act.

The 1946 act, Ragan said, allows information to be withheld "in the public interest" or for "good cause shown," but does not define these terms.

"They are left to the interpretation of agency heads of subordinates who take the easy course of putting the secrecy stamp on matters completely unrelated in any way to national security," he said.

Ragan said the original language of the 1964 act was to be preferred over proposed amendments.

"If there is a weakness," he said, "it is in the proposed changes which make exceptions too broad."

"Exceptions pertaining to certain administrative procedures within the Defense Department, for instance, may still contribute to the withholding of public information," he said.

Ragan quoted Sen. Edward V. Long, the bill's author, as saying: "A government by secrecy benefits no one. It injures the people it seeks to serve; it injures its own integrity and operation."

Speaking for himself and The Associated Press Managing Editors Association, Ragan declared, "In our time I cannot conceive of any matter more vital to the nation and its people than communication between all the diverse elements that make up this great country."

"I do not propose that the press should subsist on hand-outs," he said, "but I do not think requests for information should be arbitrarily denied. It should, in fact, be available on request and regularly released."

"The right of the public to know the public's business, which is government in all its aspects, has long been recognized as one of the first bulwarks of American democracy."

Military Pay Hike Headed For Enactment

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $207 million yearly pay raise for more than 2.6 million military personnel was headed today for speedy enactment, perhaps in time to get into August paychecks.

The election-year bonanza whizzed through the Senate Monday by voice vote a little more than one week after it was formally approved without public hearings by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

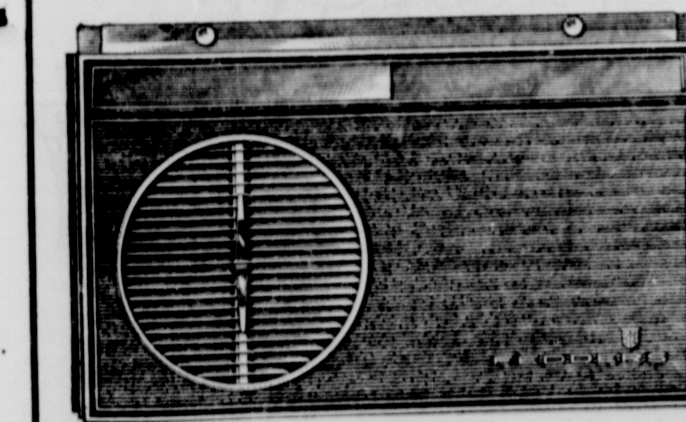

If it gets through Congress and is signed by the President before the end of this month, the raises would become effective Aug. 1.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee called for speedy action. He steered the bill to a subcommittee headed by Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who said House hearings would be brief.

Asked if he could get the measure to the President before the end of the month, Rivers said "we could very well do that."

TOP BAT LOST

Foul Tip Benches Dodgers' Catcher

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers just lost half their 300 hitters. They had two until Monday night, when a ball fouled back sharply by Houston's Walter Bond struck catcher John Roseboro on the middle finger of his right hand.

Roseboro, who had raised his average to .310 and become the club's leading hitter with a single earlier in the game, suffered severe lacerations on both sides of the finger. He may not be able to play regularly for a couple of weeks or more.

The finger wasn't broken but it took 15 stitches to patch it. Houston won the game 4 - 1, dealing the Dodgers their third consecutive loss. The Colt .45s scored all their runs in the fourth inning, three on a double by rookie Jerry Grote, who is hitting .194.

Roseboro, having his finest season as a hitter, was injured in the fifth. Bond just grazed a pitch with his bat and the ball struck Roseboro on the tip of the finger.

"I saw blood on John's pants," said Dodger Manager Walter Alton, "and I figured the finger was broken and everything else. It was split down both sides to the first joint."

"It's pretty hard to replace a 300 hitter when one is all you've got."

Actually, Alton had two. Rookie Derrell Griffith is batting .308 but has been in only 31 games.

A doctor said Roseboro may be able to swing a bat in a few days. But it is presumable will take some time longer for the finger to heal enough to permit Roseboro to do all the throwing required of a catcher.

"I'll tell you this much about John," Alton said, "When he's half ready, he'll give it a try."

Joe Gaines led off the fourth inning for Houston Monday night with a triple and scored the first run of the game on a single by Mike White. Bob Lillis moved White to second with a looping single and both advanced on a wild pitch by Joe Moeller.

Moeller then walked Eddie Kasko to load the bases and Grote cleared them with a shot up the alley in left-center field.

Moeller, relieved in the fifth, allowed seven of the eight Houston hits and suffered his eighth loss in 13 decisions. The winner was Jim Owens, 4-6, who went 6 2/3 innings and gave up eight hits.

The Dodgers got to Owens for their only run in the seventh, when Tom Davis singled, took third on a single by Wally Moon and scored on a sacrifice fly by Nate Oliver.

"Everyone came to camp in fine shape," said Lemm after greeting 42 players, including 19 rookies. "And for our first workout our veteran ends and flankers were running their patterns extremely well."

Wonder if Wally will be in the same frame of mind if the Cards blow their opening game to the Dallas Cowboys in the Cotton Bowl Sept. 12?

Another coach, Bill McPeak of the Washington Redskins, expressed complete satisfaction over two new acquisitions.

McPeak was impressed with the speed of pass receivers Angelo Coia and Joe Hernandez. Coia was acquired from the Chicago Bears and Hernandez spent last season playing in Canada.

McPeak hopes the newcomers will take the pressure off flanker Bobby Mitchell, who led the Redskins' attack for the past two seasons.

The Green Bay Packers, under the watchful eyes of Vince Lombardi, worked on blocking and pass patterns. The squad of 34 veterans and 23 rookies were together for the first time in training.

The Pittsburgh Steelers signed six more players to 1964 contracts, leaving only linebacker Bob Schmitz, quarterback Terry Nofsinger and tackle Lou Michaels unsigned.

Don Chandler advised the New York Giants that he will retire unless the club permits him to attend to his business interests in Tulsa, Okla., half the week during the season.

Chandler asked if he could return to Tulsa after each game and rejoin the Giants on Thursday for practice and the weekend game. Coach Alie Sherman's reply was a firm "no."

On other fronts: The Detroit Lions opened their training camp with 25 rookies and 26 veterans on hand to receive physicals. Don Shula led the Baltimore Colts through heavy contact drills. Joe Kuharich, coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, continued his search for players to take over the six positions left open after the off-season trades. The Packers asked waivers on rookie guard Mike Hicks of Marshall (W.Va.) College.

JESTING THE TOUR

Infiltrators Look Good To Rip Engle

NEW YORK (AP) — Word filters down from University Park, Pa., a suburb of the city of State College, that Rip Engle is off for Vietnam after having visited Hawaii, Okinawa, Japan and Korea.

Rip, if you've forgotten since New Year's Day, is the Penn State football coach. An assistant, Frank Patrick, has been on tour with him.

The trip, it says, is sponsored by the U.S. Army, which might lead to some conclusion jumping. Could be Rip and Frank decided if you can't beat 'em, join 'em. There's a morale building angle, too. Some of those films taken in Michie Stadium at West Point could make the Army look good even in Vietnam.

But when you find two football coaches taking such a "good will" tour, you're convinced the correct word must be "recruiting." So it doesn't take a great stretch of imagination to reconstruct this scene on the plane as they head for home:

Instead of a first-run feature film, the screen in the cabin shows football players rushing hither and yon — especially yon. Engle pushes the stop and back-up buttons as he studies the moves of a sophomore quarterback. He shudders as a cadet wearing a coolie hat appears momentarily in the background.

Patrick: "What do you think we accomplished, coach? I kinda liked that 300 pound Hawaiian guard but I'm not sure he can make the scholastic grade in turfgrass agronomy. We may have to get him a tutor."

Engle, snapping to attention: "Hawaiians, forget 'em. They're too complacent. We're going to concentrate on developing our Viet Cong Infiltrators on defense. Won't that make Paul Dietzel look sick?"

Patrick: "Infiltrators?"

Engle: "Yeah, I signed them for scholarships at a prison camp while you were showing movies to the military advisors. If Dietzel thinks Chinese Bandits are mean and tough, he should see these guys. Why, one of 'em was caught picking up napalm bombs and throwing them back. It took three South Vietnam platoons and a top sergeant to capture 11 and they couldn't get me any substitutes."

Patrick: "I'm not worried about Dietzel. I hear the Pentagon told him to stop calling them Chinese — might offend somebody. They're just the Bandits now."

Engle: "Well, they could be Scandinavians and we'd still have a tough time beating 'em at West Point. Besides, we can't let Notre Dame get all the publicity with those Apache Indians Ara Parseghian signed up. I hear he's calling them Geronimo's Irish Grandsons."

LITTLE LEAGUE

Three-Way Finance used all hit attack to defeat Eastgate, 14-3, in Little League action at Eastside Monday night. Gebhart had a home run for Three-Way and Southwell had one for the losers.

Girls, Midgets, 'Losers Leave' On Mat Show

Girls, midgets, and a "loser leave town" battle of heavyweights gives Promoter Ralph Fox one of his most colorful wrestling cards in months here tonight.

Ann Casey, Mobile, Ala., and Fran Gravette, Canadian star of the women's mat circuit, are paired in one co-feature. Manchurian Chin Lee and Chief Little Eagle, the Florida Indian, are in the winner-take-all battle of heavyweights in which the loser promises to take his wares elsewhere.

Midget sensations Chico Santana of Puerto Rico and Frenchy Semard of Canada, both weighing less than 100 pounds, do battle in a preliminary.

Then, as an added attraction, there's a "special event" in which Promoter Fox has matched midgets and girls for a tag team scramble. The pairing for the relay match wasn't announced, but will be made by ring-time.

First match starts at 8:15 o'clock.

Miss Bartkowicz Leads In Girls' Tennis Tourney

LAKE BLUFF, Ill. (AP) — Defending Champion Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., leads a field of 32 survivors into the second-round today of the national 16-and-under girls tennis tournament.

Miss Bartkowicz, 15, had little difficulty eliminating Laurel Holgerson of Milwaukee 6-0, 6-0 in the opening round Monday.

Miss Bartkowicz will play unseeded Judy Dixon of Montclair, N.J.

Seven other seeded players including Patsy Rippey of Shawnee, Okla., also survived first round action. Miss Rippey's second round opponent will be Anne Speicher of Delray Beach, Fla.

California led the parade among the seeded players with five left in the running. The only outsider was third-seeded Becky Vest of Jackson, Miss.

Coach Mel McGaha of the Kansas City Athletics started in baseball with the Houston team of the Texas League in 1948.

CLASH OVER CALL

Dark, Ump Have Show Of Temper

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Up to now, any suggestion that Alvin Dark curses would have been received with the skepticism reserved for a revelation that Santa Claus takes bribes from rich kids.

But the time has come to puncture the myth. And who better to do it than the manager of the San Francisco Giants himself?

Champs Start Title Defenses In Penn Tennis

HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI) — Chuck McKinley, defending champion in the 65th annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships, and Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman, second-seeded in the women's division, will start their delayed play today.

McKinley and second-seeded Dennis Ralston, Davis Cup stars, and Arthur Ashe, ranked sixth, were late in arriving here for the matches at the Merion Cricket Club because of exhibition matches for President Johnson on the White House courts.

Mrs. Susman, of San Antonio, Tex., was delayed because her car developed motor trouble while en route from Chicago with her husband. She will play Brenda Nunn of Canada.

Mrs. Carole Graeber, Santa Monica, Calif., top-seeded in the women's division, advanced to today's play by routing Carol Heffelfinger, Bethlehem, Pa., 6-0, 6-1 on Monday.

Frank Froehling, third-seeded, was another who did not play Monday and will begin competition today.

Eugene Scott, Saint James, N.Y., the fourth seeded and fourth ranking player in the United States, came from behind in the second set at 2-4 Monday to defeat D. R. Sabberton, Cambridge University, 6-1, 6-4.

Other seeded American men who advanced to today's round were Martin Rissen, Evanston, Ill.; Charles Pasarell, Saurter, Puerto Rico and Ron Helms, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Foreign seeded players who were victorious Monday were Abe Segal, South Africa, Permitt Lal, India, and Patricio Rodriguez, Chile.

Carol Hnks, St. Louis, Mo., the fourth seeded woman, reached the third round as did Judy Alvarez, third seeded from Tampa, Fla.

Dark, who never takes the Lord's name in vain, confessed Monday after two umpires' calls in the ninth inning, which, in his opinion, gave the Chicago Cubs a victory over the Giants, 6-4.

Dark said he swore only after he was ejected by Frank Secory, who he had told headed an umpiring group that "was the worst in the league."

"I don't swear at ball players," an angry Secory said afterwards. "But I swear and I admit it. I'm no hypocrite."

"But I'm sick and tired of reading about this devout manager who never swears. He came out and said we all ought to give up and I tossed him."

"Then he swore at me," continued Secory. "And you can print that."

Dark started fuming on a call at second base in the ninth with the Giants leading, 4-2. First baseman Orlando Cepeda tumbled while trying to stop a grounder hit by Billy Williams and tried for force Doug Clemens by throwing while supine.

Umpire Ken Burkhardt gave the safe sign to Clemens, who had reached first on an error by second baseman Hal Lanier.

Dark pulled starter Bob Bolin in favor of reliever Bob Shaw. With the count 2-2 on Ron Santo, Shaw threw one of his infrequent fast balls close to the outside corner.

Umpire Paul Pryor called it a ball. Shaw and catcher Del Crandall reacted as if they were victims of a simultaneous hot-foot.

Santo sent the next pitch into the wind and over the right field fence for a three-run homer. This pinned the loss on Shaw (6-4) and ultimately gave the victory to reliever Don Elston (1-1).

After Shaw walked the next man, Dark came out to bring in Billy Pierce. Dark had his words with Secory at this point.

Adding to Dark's obvious ire was the way the Giants lost — with 15 hits, four CB errors, three walks and 13 men left on base. The loss was San Francisco's sixth in eight games and deprived them of overtaking the Philadelphia Phillies, three percentage points ahead in first place after losing, 6-2, to Cincinnati.

The Giants had gone ahead on fifth-inning homers by Cepeda and Crandall off consecutive pitches by Cub starter Ernie Broglio. Cepeda's 18th homer came with Jim Hart on base.

Series Of Parties Fetes Miss De'Lane Cooper

Miss De'Lane Cooper, who will wed Jesse Benjamin Hollis this Saturday at Central Baptist Church, has been honored with several prenuptial festivities. Parents of the engaged couple are Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cooper of Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Hollis of Bernice.

Mrs. Fred Salley and her daughter, Miss Charlotte Salley, entertained last Saturday afternoon from 3:30 to 5:30 with a rice bag party for Miss Cooper.

A white milk glass vase filled with pink roses and blue stock was placed at the entrance, while pink roses and greenery in a pink vase flanked by pink candles were noted on a side table. On the coffee table was an oblong cut glass container holding an arrangement of pink carnations.

Miss Salley served iced drinks and party foods to the afternoon guests, who included Mrs. C. L. Hinton Jr., Miss Joyce Miller, Miss Sandra Vigg, Miss Priscilla Thompson, Miss Grenda Younse, Miss Patti Williams, Miss Ann Grafton, Miss Rita Bloomer, Miss Julia McVay and the honoree.

For the informal party, Miss Cooper wore pink silk jims with a shirt in varied shades of pink.

MISCELLANEOUS

Last Tuesday night's compliment for Miss Cooper was a miscellaneous shower hosted by Misses Priscilla Thompson, Sandra Vigg and Patti Williams. The 7 to 9 p.m. party was held at Benoit Recreation Center.

Miss Williams asked the evening's guests to sign the bride's book, which was placed on an entrance table decorated with a memory candle surrounded by greenery.

Miss Thompson and Miss Vigg presided at the refreshment table, which was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a white ceramic cherub containing white carnations and foliage. Miss Cooper received guests

Carlton Home Scene For Girls Meeting

The Junior Girls Unit of the Ladies Auxiliary of Rodney J. Hobbs VFW Post 1809 met last Thursday afternoon, July 16, in the L. E. Carlton home in West Monroe. At that time, reports on activities during April, May and June of this year were discussed.

Presiding over the business session, Diane Cockerham called for the reports. It was agreed to continue holding meetings on the first Saturday of each month. A suggestion was made to work up a small variety show to be presented at homes for aged in the area.

The group's special project of collecting funds for Radio Free Europe was discussed and stress put on doing and learning more about Americanism at home and abroad.

Officers to serve for the 1964-65 year will be: Diane Cockerham, president; Deane Keltner, first vice-president; Jane Gauthier, second vice-president; Doty Cowan, secretary-treasurer; Kathy Carlton, patriotic instructor; Rebecca Bedenbender, guard; Yvonne Simmons conductress; Elaine Simmons, chaplain; Susan Gail Carlton and Suzanne Cockerham, color bearers.

Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender works with the group as adult advisor in her capacity as youth activities chairman for the Auxiliary and represents the civic participating group working with youth for the local Business and Professional Women. Mrs. A. E. Gossett and Mrs. Effie Presnall, president and treasurer respectively of the Auxiliary, will also serve on the advisory board.

ALONG the OUACHITA

MR. AND MRS. LESTAR MARTIN announce the arrival of a daughter, Sarah Pleasant, who was born July 17. Welcoming her baby sister is Marguerite Walker Martin. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Field of Alexandria and Mrs. James Marshall of New Orleans. Mrs. Field is visiting in Monroe to make the acquaintance of her new granddaughter. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Martin of Jonesboro and Joseph S. Washburn of Monroe.

BRIDGE WINNERS in Pine Bluff, Arkansas this weekend were Mrs. Charles Williams Jr. and Mrs. Jack Rivers, who were guests of Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Ford. They participated in the Pines Tournament, held at the Pines Hotel, where they won first place in the women's pairs and first in another event. Also attending the tournament from Monroe were Mrs. Ted Cash and Mrs. Sonny Dixon, who visited with Mrs. Cash's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Biekman.

MR. AND MRS. P. A. COLVIN, together with their son Dale Colvin and his family from Houston, Texas, recently returned home from an extended trip through the New England states, stopping at points of interest in North Carolina, Virginia and Washington, D.C. They spent ten days in New York City sightseeing, attending Broadway plays and visiting the World's Fair, and returned by way of Niagara Falls.

FAIRFAX, VIRGINIA visitor to the city is Miss Trudy Wamsley, who has arrived for an extended visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wamsley, 103 Pecan Grove, Monroe, and Mrs. Margaret Smith, West Monroe. Miss Wamsley flew from Fairfax and was met in Memphis, Tennessee by the Wayne Wamsleys and accompanied them home. She plans to remain in the Twin Cities for a month.

Sigma Theta Phi Meet, Organize New Sorority

A new high school social sorority, Sigma Theta Phi, was organized last week, and the group's first meeting was held last Thursday, July 16, at the home of Sallie Sudduth on Frances Place. At this first general meeting, temporary officers were elected and a business meeting was held.

Chosen as officers for the newly organized sorority were Sallie Sudduth, president; Sally Taylor, vice-president; Barbara Kurtz, secretary; and Mary Lou Reljac, sergeant at arms. It was announced that the next meeting will be held at the home of Kyle Gregory on Whitney Drive.

Following the business session refreshments were served and the girls were invited to swim. Attending the meeting were Beverly Braud, Linda Corro, Sheila Devereaux, Pam Glenn, Kyle Gregory, Barbara Kurtz, Sally Taylor, Kay Otnott, Pam Sampagnaro, Connie Clark, Debbie Holden, Kitty Holmes, Delores Phillips, Dorothy Holler, Carol Britton, Sue Spight, Kay Turnage, Mary Lou Reljac, Sherry Ussery, Peggy Gates, Linda Massey, Mary Sherman.

Bridal Shower Given To Fete Mrs. Jordan

A household shower honoring Mrs. Jimmy Dean Jordan, formerly Miss Verna Mae Moore of Calhoun, was given in the home of Mrs. Ralph Camp of Calhoun last Friday evening. Hostesses for the event were Miss Violet Little and Miss Diana Lynn Spillers.

Upon arrival, the honoree was presented a corsage by the hostesses. The table was covered with a white cloth over green, and a bouquet of yellow mimosas served as the centerpiece.

After games and the opening of presents, refreshments were served.

Attending the event were Mrs. Nancy Albritton, Mrs. Irene Jordan, Mrs. Milton Albritton, Mrs. Robert Miltstead, Mrs. Billy Ross Crawford, Mrs. P. H. Camp, Mrs. Ralph Camp, Mrs. Don Lee Jordan, Mrs. Arnold Jordan, Mrs. G. A. Spillers, Mrs. W. L. Moore, mother of the honoree, and Miss LeeAnn Camp.

Weekend Parties Given To Honor Engaged Couple

In anticipation of their wedding August 8 at Westminster Presbyterian Church, Miss Lynn Smith and Fred Culpepper III have been honored with a number of courtesies. Weekend parties included a supper party at Trawick Farm, a bridge and supper party, and a morning party for Miss Smith. Parents of the engaged couple are Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Culpepper Jr.

Trawick Farm was the setting late Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Jean Boyce, Mrs. T. O. Trawick and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Trawick entertained at an outdoor supper party for Miss Smith and Mr. Culpepper.

Mixed summer flowers formed a massive arrangement in a brass bowl on the serving table, where dinner was served buffet style. Flanking the arrangement were large wooden green and gold candle holders with green tapers. A large black iron pot belonging to the Trawick family was used to ice bottled drinks. Guests sat at tables, one of which was centered with trailing ivy and lemons in a brass tea kettle and flanked with brass candlesticks holding yellow tapers. A brown bean pot held yellow and gold zinnias on the other table, where light was furnished by yellow tapers in brown wooden candle holders.

Guests included Miss Louise Gray, Wynn Jefferson, Miss Lea Thompson, Richard Olson, Miss Billie Sue Dixon, George Buckner, Miss Carol Culpepper, Howard Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Culpepper Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

SUPPER-BRIDGE

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Buckner entertained in their home on Spencer Avenue on Friday evening with a supper-bridge party for the couple.

Rain lilies and ferns were used in the living room, and in the den were two arrangements of magnolia blossoms and foliage. The dining tables were centered with old fashioned bouquets of rose and garden flowers in milkglass containers.

For her party, Miss Smith wore a shift dress of white waffle pique.

Following dinner, bridge was played, with Jim Guthrie winning the prize for high score, and Fred Culpepper winning the floating prize. The honoree were presented with a gift of silver by their hosts.

Attending the party were the hosts, honorees, and Miss Harriet Murray, George Buckner Jr., Miss Lea Thompson, Richard Olson, Miss Bunny Buckner and Jim Guthrie.

MORNING PARTY

An informal morning party was given for Miss Smith on Thursday morning by Mrs. F. V. Allison and Mrs. C. A. Nennay, who entertained at the Allison home on Emerson Avenue.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hostesses and invited into the living room, where caladium leaves, daisies and tuberoses filled a silver and crystal epergne on the piano. In the bay window was an arrangement of pink crape myrtle and on the mantel was a single magnolia blossom.

Rubrum lilies filled a silver container at one end of the refreshment table. At the other end Mrs. LeRoy Anspach served punch from a crystal bowl.

The honoree wore for her party a white whipped cream dress with floral design, white accessories, and a corsage of pink roses and tuberoses, a gift of the hostesses.

Calling between the hours of 10 and 11:30 o'clock were Mrs. Frank F. Smith, Mrs. Fred C. Culpepper Jr., Mrs. Fred C. Culpepper Sr., Mrs. Edwin C. Rowan, Mrs. Lea S. Thompson, Mrs. Leo McStravick, Mrs. T. H. Woods, Mrs. Harry Stone, Mrs. Floyd Stone Jr., Mrs. James Murphy, Mrs. Lon S. Heuer, Mrs. William Gannaway, Mrs. LeRoy Anspach, Mrs. H. B. Hargrove, Mrs. R. E. Hanna Jr., Mrs. R. E. Hanna Sr., Mrs. R. G. Hart, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. N. D. Abell, Mrs. Joseph Amman, Mrs. John Eby, Mrs. Arthur Grant, Mrs. Hoy Anders, Mrs. Charles Searcy, Mrs. Earl Cobb, Mrs. Edward F. Hayward Jr., Mrs. John B. Reitzell, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope, Mrs. William Harris and Mrs. J. Arthur Smith Jr.

Improper To Accept Money From Boyfriend

By DOROTHY RICEER

Dear Mrs. Ricker: I have asked several people about this problem but so far no one has been able to give me an adequate answer. I have been dating a boy for about six weeks but there is something about him which bothers me — he needs to use a deodorant. I am sure other people notice this, too. I am very fond of him and wouldn't want to hurt his feelings by saying anything too obvious. I keep remembering the old saying, "Even your best friends won't tell you" and

I have learned this is certainly true. Can you give me a solution to this problem? LISSA

Dear Lissa: The reason you have not received an "adequate" answer to your question is because it is almost impossible to give. You ask, "How can I tell this boy he has an unpleasant body odor without hurting his feelings?" Nine-nine times out of 100 it cannot be done. All the diplomacy in the world cannot lessen the hurt of being told you need a bath and are offensive to others.

The best solution to this problem is to try to plant the suggestion in an indirect way. For example, I have a leaflet, "HOW TO LOOK YOUR BEST" which covers, among other things, the subject of using deodorants. If the boy would read it and apply the advice to himself this should produce the desired results. I suggest you send for this free leaflet and show it to him. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Mail it to me in care of this newspaper.

Dear Mrs. Ricker: I would like to have your opinion regarding a situation about which my mother and I disagree. I have been going out with a boy for the past month. Would it be proper if I accepted $10 from him to buy an outfit for a special occasion which we plan to attend? My mother says this would be improper. I do not agree. I think it would be the same thing as if I accepted a gift instead of the money. We all would like to have your opinion. Thank you. SANDRA

Dear Sandra: Sorry, but Mom is right. It would be positively improper to accept money from a boy you have been dating only a month. Even if you were engaged to him it would still be considered wrong. You should not accept clothing or other very personal gifts, nor should you accept expensive gifts of any kind from a boy you are dating.

Claiborne HDC Meets With Mrs. Salley

The Claiborne Home Demonstration Club met last week in the home of Mrs. Monk Salley, with Mrs. W. J. Dunn as co-hostess.

Mrs. David Bryan, president, conducted the business session and gave the thought for the day. Under discussion were the annual picnic for members and their families on Thursday, August 6, at Cheniere Park, the fair booth under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ray Callaway, and Home and Garden week at L.S.U., August 17-20, for which Mrs. C. A. Nenny and Mrs. L. M. Bayne were chosen as delegates.

The vice-president, Mrs. Charles Glover, presented the program, which included leader reports by Mrs. Calloway on family life, Mrs. H. O. Eley on house furnishings and Mrs. Audrey Dawson's demonstration on up-to-date clothing construction.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Eley, Mrs. Nenny, Mrs. Calloway, Mrs. Wiley L. Roach Jr., Mrs. E. C. Gaskins, Mrs. J. K. Kennedy, Mrs. Jasper Jones, Mrs. L. A.

Wife's Doctor, Drug Bills Simply Enormous

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my wife. She has been going from one doctor to the next for almost 30 years. When he tells her there is nothing wrong with her, she finds another doctor. The doctor and drug bills every month are tremendous. I wouldn't mind if she were really sick, but she isn't. She carries a pocketbook full of pills in case she has some sort of "attack," which she has never had. She is up on all the known diseases, and is always looking for new ones. What is your advice? I'm sick of telling her that she isn't sick.

HER HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: People who are preoccupied with diseases and imaginary illnesses are indeed "sick." Tell the present physician about your wife's history. Perhaps HE can convince her that she needs help above her eyebrows.

DEAR ABBY: To celebrate our fifth wedding anniversary, my husband and I would like to

Twins Club Meets, Hears Mr. Van Buren

Mrs. Ebert Van Buren presided over the short business meeting held by the Twin Cities Twins Club last Thursday night, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the First National Bank Building in West Monroe. During the business session the members of the organization voted to become affiliated with the National Organization of Mothers of Twins.

Following the business meeting, Ebert Van Buren, a local psychologist, spoke to members and guests of the problems of rearing twins. He stressed the importance of allowing twins to develop as individuals. A period of questions and answers followed his speech.

The next meeting will be held August 20 in the First National Bank Building in West Monroe with a panel of local educators as the guest speakers.

Mrs. James Bennett and Mrs. Bryan Ritter, hostesses, served refreshments to the members and their husbands who were invited guests. Present were Mrs. Fred W. Burt, Mrs. Sam Marzula, Mrs. Perry Zeigler, Mrs. Zack Purdy, Mrs. Sam LaDart, Mrs. James Easterling, Mrs. Ray Lindow, Mrs. J. M. Mitchell, Mrs. L. J. Nola, Mrs. Robert Butler, Mrs. Ebert Van Buren, Mrs. James Bennett, Mrs. Bryan Ritter, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tubb, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Knight.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Clothes may make the man, but the figure makes the clothes when women are concerned. The most expensive stunning gown loses its punch if its wearer has a protruding abdomen, a roll over the girdle or bulges at the thigh line.

On the other hand, the simplest dress looks chic if the woman who is wearing it has a good figure and lovely posture. Even if a woman is the correct weight poor posture can make her look out of proportion and can turn a beautiful dress into a rag.

It is the figure a woman has, the way she wears her clothes and how she carries herself that make the difference. If she does not hold herself correctly, her bust will practically disappear, her waist will thicken two or three inches, her abdomen will protrude and she will probably be swayed back.

GENERAL RULES

Concerning what to wear, there are general rules for the tall woman, the short woman, the fat woman and the thin one. While these rules are helpful, they sometimes get women in trouble. For instance, if a woman is very tall she may wear her skirts extremely short believing that this will cut her height. Instead she looks all legs and it calls attention to her height. The flat-chested woman may wear such extremely padded or wired brassieres that she looks distorted and not at all natural.

The very short woman may wear extremely high heels in order to add height to her silhouette. She may not be able to handle these gracefully and may appear like a woman on stilts. The tall woman may adopt the completely flat heel as her trademark and it becomes just that in the minds of others.

USE MODERATION

So, if you are above or below average height, have a flat chest or a full bosom, a long neck or a short one, use the rules with moderation and discretion. You wear your CLOTHES. Don't let them wear you—down.

Keep hep with the styles. Be fashionable, but adapt the fashions to you in a flattering way. And remember, the figure makes the clothes much more than the clothes make you!

If you would like to have my very short routine of exercise which is corrective to the most usual feminine figure defects send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Perfect Daily Routine," number 19. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

INCREASE SALES

TURIN, Italy (AP)—Italy's Fiat automobile company reported 502,000 vehicles sold in the first half of this year, 30,000 more than in the same period last year. It gave gross revenue as $780 million, an increase of $30.4 million.

Goldwater's Views On Varied Subjects Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Following are the views of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Republican presidential nominee, on a variety of issues, as expressed in his books, interviews, campaign speeches, statements and other public remarks:

AGRICULTURE

"Most of our farm bills have been the product of government price-fixing," Goldwater said in Redding, Calif., on May 25.

He suggested Feb. 12 in Portland, Ore., that the federal government's only involvement with farmers should be in a loan guarantee program similar to that of the Federal Housing Administration, to make money available when it really is needed.

"This is the only place I see now for the federal government to act directly with the farmers," he said. "You'll find that all of the crops that are kept at a high unnatural price are giving way to foreign competition."

At Littleton, N.H., on Feb. 5, he said a federal withdrawal from farm subsidies could be accomplished over a three-to-five-year period.

"The 30 per cent of our agriculture now under the President's support program should be slowly withdrawn from it, so that at the end of a reasonable period of time the law of supply and demand will determine the prices the farmers receive," Goldwater said Oct. 20, 1963, in response to questions submitted by The Associated Press.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Goldwater, commenting on July 12 on the Republican platform plank on civil rights, declared that as president he would enforce the new law and added:

"I don't think either party should try at this time to go beyond the present bill, which is the law."

Talking of his opposition to the measure on constitutional grounds, Goldwater said "It's up to the Supreme Court to decide whether I was right or wrong."

He said a president promises to uphold all the laws and "if I didn't believe I could do it I'd withdraw from the race right now."

On July 10, Goldwater told the Republican platform committee he would not as president seek repeal of the civil rights law. "No," he said, "that's not in my opinion the duty of a president."

"Even though I voted with the minority I stand with the majority."

"I still feel that two of the titles are unconstitutional, and the Supreme Court will determine that," he said.

Goldwater added: "If I am your president, I will do something about this in more ways than the law."

He said he would use the prestige of the presidency to seek an end to discrimination of all sorts.

"This is fundamentally a matter of the heart," Goldwater said in reply to an Associated Press questionnaire on July 5. "The problems of discrimination can never be cured by laws alone; but I would be the first to agree that laws can help—laws carefully considered and weighed in an atmosphere of dispassion, in the absence of political demagoguery, and in the light of fundamental constitutional principles."

"We now have too much government and too little understanding in these matters; too much mob and too little individual responsibility."

Announcing he would vote against the civil rights bill, Goldwater said on the Senate floor June 18 "I am unalterably opposed to discrimination or segregation on the basis of race, color or creed; not only my words, but more importantly my actions have repeatedly demonstrated the sincerity of my feeling in this regard."

Goldwater said he would reluctantly vote against the bill because the public accommodations and Fair Employment Practices Commission sections "fly in the face of the Constitution and require for their execution the creation of a police state."

"I think I can safely say that I can run on a platform that would contain the civil rights bill that passes Congress," Goldwater said June 7 in Chester, Pa., adding: "I can assure you it won't be the one that is before us now."

In San Diego on May 26, Goldwater said he opposed the public accommodations and fair employment sections of the civil rights bill and "the mainstream of the Republican party in Congress feels either they have to go or to be modified."

"If they'd take Title 7 out altogether and make Title 2 what it was originally meant to be—the traditional right of the states—then I would go for the bill."

"Although frankly," he said, "I think it's like a $3 bill, it's a phoney. There's only one good section, the school integration section, the rest we already have in law."

"As your president," he said May 25 in Oakland, Calif., "I would immediately seek to restore civil order so that our discussion of civil rights could proceed with open hearts and minds."

Explaining a shift in views he made about 18 months earlier after consulting with legal advisers, Goldwater said in a television interview May 24:

"At one time I felt that it was improper for the federal government to intervene in a local school system as far as integration goes.

"I believe now that this is possible, and I believe the machinery is there to do it, and I think the criticism I would aim at the attorney generals we have had is that they haven't used the machinery."

In a campaign position paper issued April 14, Goldwater said: "We must always make a sharp distinction between civil rights guaranteed under the Constitution and those rights of association that are basically moral issues and cannot be resolved by passing unenforceable federal laws."

He said the right to vote, to equal treatment before the law, to hold property and to the protection of contracts are guaranteed by the Constitution.

In San Francisco on March 31, Goldwater said:

"I'll stack my civil rights record with any white man in this country. I've done something about it."

"We never write off votes," he said, "but I look at it in a realistic way. In the large cities the Negro vote has been about 80 per cent Democratic in national elections."

"I think if any Negro read my record he'd find a better friend in me," Goldwater said in Detroit on March 25.

Goldwater said in Stockton, Calif., on March 18 "I don't believe this problem can be solved by law." As president, he said, "I would continue doing what I've been doing as an individual American. I think that moral persuasion and the prestige of a president can do more to solve this problem than law ever can."

"I don't want to see my country destroyed, in a vain attempt to solve a problem that can only be solved in the hearts of men," he said. "I can show you more segregation practiced on the Canadian border than you can find anywhere in the South. I can show you discrimination in New York that would turn your hair."

"I think it's wrong to take to the streets in violation of the law," he said in San Francisco March 15. "I think there is a great resentment building up across the nation."

At Bristol, N.H., on Feb. 19, he said "I can't vote for the civil rights bill with either one of these sections in it." He was referring to the public accommodations and fair employment practices provisions.

"Now if a state wants to pass either one of these it is their prerogative," he said. "I would resist it in my own state."

Goldwater later was quoted as endorsing in a letter a public accommodations ordinance for his home town of Phoenix.

On Feb. 19 in Hanover, N.H., he said he thinks civil rights can become a reality in the South without legislation. "Where it can be speeded up by federal action would be in the schools," he said.

Goldwater said in Globe, Ariz., on Feb. 14 the public accommodations section "would force you to admit a drunk or a murderer or an insane person into your place of business." He said that the fair employment section of the bill would lead to a quota system of hiring and "you are going to lose your right to select your employees."

In Chicago on Feb. 8 he said "I couldn't get enough of the Negro vote to worry about what I did on any legislation. I regret that."

CUBA

"We must impose, again, an effective economic-military blockade on Cuba. We must enforce our restrictions and levy penalties against shipping which attempts to trade with both the United States and Cuba. We must have an equally effective blockade against the export of agitators and arms from Cuba," Goldwater said July 5.

"A tight blockade around Cuba would heavily undermine Castro's power, put an unacceptably high price on the Soviet aid which is propping up his police state, and enable the people of Cuba themselves—those inside the country, together with an exile army—to live under freedom once more. Immediate U.S. recognition of a Cuban government-in-exile would be the indispensable first step toward Cuban self-liberation. Such a government could ask for every form of U.S. and Organization of American States support—and ought to receive it."

Goldwater also said the administration is avoiding the intent of Congress that a foreign aid ban "should be used to choke off free world trade with Cuba."

"People realize that sooner or later, whether we like it or not, we're going to have to get rid of communism in Cuba or we're going to have a Communist Latin America," he said in San Diego March 20.

In Lakeport, Calif., on March 18, Goldwater said action must be taken against Castro in concert with other Hemisphere nations and "if we don't do this now, we ourselves will some day have to repeat what we did in 1898."

When Castro halted the water supply to the Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Goldwater, campaigning in Kingston, N.H., said:

"I hope the President has the courage to tell Castro turn that water back on or we're going to turn it on ourselves. . . . turn it on or the Marines will turn it on for you and keep it on."

He repeated that position in Los Angeles on May 27. "Had I been the commanding officer of the base, I probably would have taken that action," he said. "I believe in protecting the American people first and then we'll worry about what happens afterwards."

In Newport, N.H., on Feb. 18, Goldwater said, "I think the island can be retaken the same way it was overthrown and I would proceed along these lines."

He said in Washington on Feb. 9 he would favor the use of U.S. warships to halt shipments into Cuba—including such things as British buses and French products.

"Our allies are leaving us to do business with Cuba," he said. "The blockade that we have had has not been successful because they are still in business down there."

But Goldwater said during his New Hampshire campaign that the United States must take much of the blame. He pointed to the example set by the U.S. wheat deal with the Soviet Union.

"We don't trust our allies," he said in Nashua, N.H., Jan. 8.

DEFENSE

"Basic strategic concepts for the security of this nation demanded drastic reassessment with the advent of the age of space and missiles. This nation cannot survive, in this new era, without mastery of the uses of space and heavy reliance on missile systems as against a mixed force—missiles, manned aircraft, and naval vessels of all types," Goldwater said July 5.

"I have raised, and will continue to raise until all the facts are in, fundamental questions about the reliability of our intercontinental ballistic missiles. It is not a question of theoretical accuracy. The fact is that not one of our advanced ICBMs has ever been subjected to a full test—of all component systems, including warheads—under simulated battle conditions."

In Dallas, June 16, Goldwater said the nation is being fed "packets of lies" by the Pentagon about U.S. missile strength. "Whether we like it or not, we are in second place," he said, "and I defy the czar of the Pentagon to dispute that statement."

Reasserting a long-standing charge, Goldwater said at Chester, Pa., on June 7 that "unless the United States develops a new manned bomber, 1970 'could find us with between 30 and 40 per cent of our nuclear strike force gone.'"

In his April 14 position paper, Goldwater said the nuclear test ban treaty—which he opposed—"means that we cannot properly test even our present missile systems."

He also complained that the United States has "no present programs looking toward primarily military applications for the environment of space."

Goldwater said there is every reason to believe the Soviet Union has such programs.

Championing the manned bomber, he said:

"If we place over-reliance on missiles rather than a mixed arsenal, our only reactions to unacceptable Soviet probes would have to be submission—or all-out nuclear war. I want to avoid the necessity of nuclear war."

"In defense matters you are inflexible if you have only one major weapons system at your disposal," he said.

He also lodged again a long-standing complaint against Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara:

"This administration has depended too heavily and too exclusively on untrained civilian officials, while tending to downgrade the advice of skilled and dedicated career members of the military."

In Detroit on March 25, he accused McNamara of "ledger sheet leadership leading to a deterrent gap in the next decade."

In Oceanside, Calif., on March 20, Goldwater protested a U.S. Soviet bomber burning deal to destroy B47s if the Russians burned badgers bombers.

"We'll still have our missiles and they'll have theirs," he said, "and I think there are a little more reliable than ours."

"I make the flat charge that Secretary McNamara and the State Department are engaged in unilateral disarmament at the expense of peace and at the expense of freedom."

McNamara, Goldwater said Jan. 23, "has probably saved the country more money and cost it more morale than any secretary in the past."

The senator said in Franklin, N.H., on Feb. 20 if he were president he would fire McNamara.

ECONOMY

In a position paper issued late in June, Goldwater said he would act to hold down federal spending "by setting priorities—clearly stated and clearly understood."

To hold down the federal budget, he said, local governments should be taking on more responsibilities in meeting clearly established needs.

"Urban renewal and welfare services are two prime examples of what I mean," he said. "At the opposite end of the scale—of necessary federal responsibilities—are the needs of defense and national security."

In Dallas, Tex., June 15, Goldwater said "If we continue to enlarge the power and the purse of the federal government at the rate we are now enlarging both, we will have to institute a new economic system—we will have to adopt a form of U.S. socialism within the next several presidential terms, and maybe sooner than that."

President Johnson, he said in Monterey, Calif., May 26, has "absolutely no regard for the value of the dollar. We are headed for about a $10-billion deficit."

"As your president I would devote more of my interest and time to seeing to it that the American dollar retains its value," he said.

"The budget can be balanced," he said in Chico, Calif., March 17, "and I'm convinced that I can balance it without damage to any services in this country."

"I feel the cost of living increase has wiped out a large part of the benefits to be gained from the tax cut that was passed just a few weeks ago," he said in Paradise, Calif., on March 17.

LABOR

In his campaign position paper on labor, Goldwater said, "to achieve industrial peace, we must maintain a balance among the rights of employees, employers and the public. Our concern for the individual employee must always be paramount."

"He should be protected from abuse and exploitation—whether such abuse of exploitation stems from actions of his employer or from the actions of union officials," he said.

"The right to strike must be protected," Goldwater added. He said the government is undermining collective bargaining by repeated intervention in labor disputes.

"I call it voluntary unionism where the state will say they can or can't have a union shop," he said in San Francisco on March 15. "This is up to the state to decide" Goldwater said he would oppose any "federal laws which prohibits the states from exercising their will in this area."

In Hillsboro, N.H., on Jan. 22, Goldwater said of right-to-work legislation: "Personally, I think very favorably of it. I don't think any American should be forced to belong to anything in order to make a living."

"Why," he asked in Kingston, N.C., on Jan. 17, "should a man be forced to join a labor union because 50.1 per cent of his fellow workers say they want to join."

"I wonder if industrywide bargaining shouldn't be looked into," he added.

Goldwater said on Oct. 20, 1963: "I have introduced legislation that would call for an open shop in all states, but at the same time this legislation would give the states the right to declare for a union shop."

MEDICAL CARE FOR THE AGED

Goldwater opposes medical care for the aged financed through Social Security. He says it would mean socialized medicine, and would push the Social Security tax so high as to endanger that system.

"The Social Security system is not the way to do it effectively. One sure way to wreck the Social Security system would be to saddle it with unnecessary new burdens, such as medicare. We penalize every aged citizen if we thus bankrupt the system which protects them," he told The Associated Press on July 5.

Goldwater argues the program would provide only hospital, not doctor's benefits. Goldwater says when he gets sick he wants a doctor to look in once in a while and say, "Goldie, how ya doing?"

He said on Oct. 20, 1963: "Health care for the aged is already provided for by the Kerr-Mills bill and by private programs. In this whole field of health, I would favor tax credit or tax deduction for any monies paid for the purpose of taking care of the aged."

Goldwater who voted against the Kerr-Mills bill, now says he thinks this is as far as the government should go.

Goldwater said in his April 14 position paper "What we desperately need are some clearly stated and clearly understood priorities for national programs. 'We cannot do everything at once and there are many things the federal government shouldn't be doing at all,' he said.

EDUCATION

Goldwater said in his April 14 campaign position paper "I have consistently opposed federal aid to elementary and secondary schools as unnecessary and unwise. Nevertheless, I have advocated that any such aid—should Congress ever authorize it—must in fairness be made available to all schools, public, private or parochial."

Goldwater said he favors tax credits for school taxes and for taxpayers supporting college students.

EXTREMISM

Goldwater said in Sacramento, Calif., on March 17 people who make extremism a campaign issue have "no business running for the presidency."

His remarks were aimed at New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his rival in the California primary. Goldwater called the issue one of "small minds" that disregard the real problems facing the nation.

"All I can say is that I will take the support of any American who is not a Communist, who has not advocated the violent overthrow of our government, and the Birch Society, like the Americans for Democratic Action, extremists on the left, are operating, in my opinion, under their constitutional rights," he said in San Francisco on March 15.

"I seek the support of no extremist groups of the left or right," he said in Fresno, Calif., March 14.

UNITED NATIONS

Goldwater made this statement on the United Nations in responding on July 5 to an Associated Press questionnaire:

"I would, at the very least, issue a warning—in the following terms: For 19 years now, the Communists have held the United Nations in contempt. They have repeatedly undermined its operations and its principles. Should the Red Chinese now, in effect, shoot their way in, the charter would be all but a dead letter. In that event, the United States—in our own best interests, and for the good of the original United Nations idea—would be forced to undertake a serious reassessment of its basic commitments."

"The first necessity for strengthening the United Nations, in my judgment, is to look critically at voting procedures. Some form of weighted voting may have to be seriously considered as a way of bringing the United Nations into line with new world realities. Many responsible authorities have suggested a system based on population, on contributions to U.N. In Belmont, Mass., on June 13, 1962, Goldwater said he could see "no reason to continue our participation" in the United Nations. "The idea was wonderful but the world is not ready for it," he said.

On Dec. 21, 1961, Goldwater said at Phoenix he had come to the "reluctant conclusion" that the United States no longer had a place in the United Nations. He pointed to the U.N. action in Katanga and India's invasion of Goa.

"I would not have had the United States withdraw unless Red China were admitted," he said. "Now I think just as great a disaster has taken place."

In Dallas on June 15, Goldwater said: "In the United Nations, this administration's ineptitude has permitted dangerous drift and decay to set in."

"The United Nations, to serve its great original purposes, needs a strong American vote to speak up for the demands of responsibility, to speak against tyranny and chaos. A Republican administration would provide that voice."

In Santa Barbara, Calif., on May 27, Goldwater said he would see no advantage in U.S. membership if Red China were admitted under the present charter. He said the charter should be revised "so we can handle the contingency of Red China."

Goldwater was asked in Globe, Ariz., on Feb. 14 whether he wants to pull out of the United Nations if Red China is admitted. "I don't think we'd have the courage to do it, but at least I can suggest it," he said.

"We must stay in the United Nations but we must make it better," he said in Meredith, N.H., on Jan. 23.

"If we live up to the spirit of the United Nations and are honorable people, Red China can't be admitted because this is an aggressor nation," he said in Moultonboro, N.H., the same day.

FOREIGN POLICY

Goldwater said in Dallas on June 15 lack of foreign policy and a "weak-kneed" foreign policy "are leading us into World War III as surely as we were led into World War II by the same kind of stupid ineptitude."

In Los Angeles on May 27 he said: "The greatest way we can help the free world would be to help the people behind the Iron Curtain assert their free will. Before I'm accused of being a warmonger, I say this can be done without going to war."

In Lebanon, N.H., on Feb. 19, he said a firm foreign policy is the best insurance of peace. "We're not afraid to risk war because we know by doing this the chances are that we won't have to go to war," he said.

"I don't think Johnson understands the foreign policy of Eisenhower," he said in San Francisco on Feb. 12. "What his foreign policy is doing is isolating the United States by bringing back troops, by bringing back bombers. We are disarming unilaterally and this is certainly not in keeping with Eisenhower foreign policy."

In Minneapolis on Feb. 3, Goldwater said, "If you get a Republican president you can get foreign policy changes awfully fast. In my case it would be changed to a policy not of belligerence but the same policy as under Eisenhower and Dulles of brinkmanship and the proper use of our strength."

INCOME TAX

In his April position paper, Goldwater said, "I share the opinion with virtually every other American that our present tax burden is onerous, often inequitable and in need of reform. But abolition is the answer to nothing."

"As president, one of my first priority tasks would be to secure a complete overhaul of our present federal tax code, so that we might quickly achieve the reforms which are so long overdue."

"Personally, I don't believe in a graduated tax, I know we can't drop it," he said in Hillsboro, N.H., on Jan. 22. "A graduated tax is a penalty on ambition."

In Concord, N.H., on Jan. 7, Goldwater said an overhaul of the tax code would make possible a rate reduction of 10 to 12 per cent in personal income taxes and about 30 per cent in corporate taxes.

On Dec. 2, 1961, Goldwater said, "Get rid of the whole graduated income tax."

In his book "The Conscience of a Conservative," published in 1960, he said, "Government has a right to claim an equal percentage of each man's wealth—and no more."

NATO

Goldwater, in his campaign position statement, said: "The greatest force for freedom in the world today is the powerful Atlantic Alliance, the NATO community. But the present administration has allowed NATO to drift into disarray—to the point where it is split, leaderless and badly lagging in its goal of building and maintaining a solid barrier against communism."

He opposed the multilateral force concept as a gimmick to give the appearance of NATO unity, and said it would not be workable.

He proposed these steps:

1. Consultation with NATO allies prior to major policy decisions affecting their security.

2. A pledge not to engage in bilateral negotiations with the Soviet Union on matters involving security or interests of NATO nations.

3. The sharing of nuclear secrets within the framework of existing law.

4. "The training of all NATO forces stationed in Europe, regardless of nationality, in the use of battlefield or tactical nuclear weapons. I suggest that the supreme commander of NATO, who is an American officer and probably always will be, have direct command over a NATO nuclear force, trained, ready and equipped, on European soil."

Goldwater says he was misquoted as saying in Hartford, Conn., on Oct. 24, 1963 that he wants NATO commanders—plural—to have authority over tactical nuclear weapons.

He said he was talking about the supreme commander.

In San Francisco on July 13, Goldwater told Florida delegates at the GOP Convention:

"I've suggested that we never remove this responsibility from the President but that the commander of NATO have a little more leeway in the selection of weapons and the timeliness of weapons."

At Fayetteville, N.C., on Jan. 18, Goldwater said:

"We can't expect NATO to fight a modern war with World War II weapons, and that is what we're asking them to do. If we have to wait for a consultation at the White House before retaliating with nuclear tactical weapons, I'm afraid we would lose in a ground attack over there."

"... The greatest bulwark ever erected by free nations, the NATO community." (From acceptance speech July 16).

NUCLEAR TEST BAN

"I voted against the treaty because it, in effect, freezes the Soviet Union in a superior position to the United States as regards the uses and effects of high-yield weapons while leaving open the possibility of their catching up to us in the field of tactical nuclear weapons, since these weapons can be perfected by underground tests which are not prohibited by the treaty," Goldwater said in his campaign position paper.

"If I were president, I can conceive of situations in which it would be necessary to abrogate the treaty," he said. "If I found it detrimental to the interests of the United States to continue to adhere to the treaty, I would use the treaty's own escape clause to release us from its provisions."

"I also feel there are important areas of amendment which should be sought immediately, particularly in the area of peaceful use of nuclear weapons," he said.

In San Francisco on Feb. 12, Goldwater said: "The treaty was written in my opinion in favor of our enemies and I think we were the stupidest people in the world to ever go along with it."

He suggested in Jaffrey, N.H., on Jan. 22 a system of limited nuclear tests totaling three megatons a year in the atmosphere, one for the Soviet Union, one for the United States and one for the rest of the world.

Goldwater said on Jan. 6 he would not rule out disarmament negotiations with the Soviet Union. "Anybody, I think, would be a fool to close the door on negotiations for anything but until the Soviet Union shows some indication that they want to disarm then I don't think negotiations are possible," he said.

SOCIAL SECURITY

"I favor a sound Social Security system and I want to see it strengthened. I want to see every participant receive all the benefits this system provides. And I want these benefits to be paid in sound 100-cent dollars. Protecting the value of the benefits is a basic necessity," he said July 5.

In his position paper earlier, he said:

"We will not preserve the Social Security system if we saddle it with unnecessary new burdens, such as Medicare. We penalize every aged citizen if we thus bankrupt the system which protects them."

VOICE OF BROADWAY DOROTHY KILGALLEN

JOTTINGS IN PENCIL . . . As everyone who has seen "Funny Girl" knows, the hottest show in town hasn't a title song. But it will have one soon. Jule Styne and Bob Merrill have rewritten the one they did originally, then cut from the opened on Broadway, and musical score before it Barbara Streisand will record it as a single next week. As soon as the tune catches on with the public, they plan to put it into the show, integrating it with the "I Wanna Be Seen With You" number . . . The brilliantly talented Mike Nichols, who took the giant step from performer (Nichols and May) to top director ("Barefoot in the Park") is experimenting with a separation from his bride, Margo Calas. The Sardi Set hopes for a reconciliation; they were married just about a year ago and recently had a baby.

The theatrical crowd is wondering why Hilly Elkins, producer of "Golden Boy," ever agreed to let Sammy Davis out of the show for two weeks — non-consecutive weeks, at that — to appear with Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor in "The Sandpiper." It means a week of refunds in Detroit, where the production will try out before the New York premiere, and a week of refunds just a fortnight after the official opening. The arrangement is quite unprecedented, and should cause a lot of screaming among the angels. . . . Las Vegas operators are growing more and more concerned over the attempts of their dealers, stickmen and other gambling room aides to form a union.

There's talk that the Caribbean Pavilion at the World's Fair may take over the French Pavilion, which is just standing there waiting for someone to unlock the door. . . . That big Hollywood romance, which has been flourishing all over the globe, is still cooking. Most recent stop, London, where the Male Star didn't fool anyone with his dark glasses, particularly since everyone recognized the Female Star.

Xavier Cugat, in Lisbon for TV filming, took a five-room suite at the Ritz but found it too confining, so he rented a 17-room villa, with swimming pool and solarium, on the seacoast. Meanwhile, thousands of miles away, Abbe Lane is being linked with Manhattan dress magnate Bob Strong.

Real Estate Transfers

Television Notes

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It is entirely possible that television has severely limited the chances for a fat man or a skinny man or an unattractive man to be a future president of the United States.

Consider the chief executives chosen by the nation since video came of age: Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy, both attractive men to the eye. Consider the chief competitors in this year's presidential race: Lyndon Johnson and Barry Goldwater, both attractive men to the eye.

But the list of names does not stop there. Both parties this year have had a number of exceptionally attractive men as potential candidates for the offices of president and vice president, and it is difficult to rule out the notion that personal appearance has now become perhaps more important than ever before in the pursuit of these positions.

In addition to Goldwater, the Republicans had such men as William Scranton, Nelson Rockefeller, George Romney, Henry Cabot Lodge and William Miller, all good-looking fellows. As one commentator noted, if the GOP ever decides to nominate Gov. Mark Hatfield and Rep. John Lindsay, it will probably have the handsomest ticket ever.

The Democrats also have a full share of personable possible candidates. In addition to Johnson, the names of such men as Hubert Humphrey, Robert Kennedy and Adlai Stevenson will be heard when the Democratic convention is telecast next month, and Robert McNamara's name has come up too.

Despite the personal attractiveness and abilities of all these men, Republicans and Democrats, it is really regrettable in a way that television has played such a large part in emphasizing this aspect of politicians. One need only thumb back through the history books to see how many good and great men might have been deprived of their presidential years if they had had to face television.

Limits Placed On Goldwater Hams

By MARTHA COLE

WASHINGTON (AP)—For amateur radio operator Barry Goldwater and some 265,000 other hams in the United States there's no regulation against discussing politics when they call each other.

Plain old politicking is another matter.

The framework of the regulations do place limits on political activity, an official of the Federal Communications Commission said today in an interview.

Goldwater, the Republican nominee for president, is an OM—old man, but in ham jargon it's any male operator regardless of age—with licenses for two general class amateur stations and a mobile permit, too.

His rig operates on K3UIG out of his Washington apartment. In San Francisco he was using K7UGA, the call letters for his Phoenix, Ariz., home. All amateur call letters in the United States start with K or W; the numeral indicates one of the 10 geographical regions of the country, and the other letters provide individual identification.

Goldwater got the licenses a little over a year ago. He had been a ham operator years ago but had dropped the hobby for a while.

Like other operators, he had

Zoning Request Action Taken

The Monroe-Ouachita Regional Planning Commission, in a lengthy session Monday night, denied one re-zoning request and took three other matters under consideration.

After a public hearing, a request to extend an R-2 (multiple family residential) district to include an 80-by-300 foot lot at 3805 Bon Aire Drive was turned down on the grounds of insufficient changes in the area to warrant re-zoning.

In other action, the commission:

Approved a petition by Charles Everett and other property owners asking a study of a south Monroe area, aimed at its rezoning from R-1 (single family residential) to I-1 (light industrial). Planning Director George Parsons was directed to initiate the study. It will consider three blocks south of Standifer and west of Jackson Street.

Approved an application for a planned building group as an apartment development on a tract south of the intersection of Erin and Shannon Streets.

Set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Aug. 3 to consider reclassification from Open Land to B-2 (neighborhood business) of a two-acre tract located Southwest of the intersection of Parkview and Temple Streets. The request is that of A. F. Canizaro.

He belongs to a dedicated group of ham radio operators that includes such well-known names as Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, and television personality Arthur Godfrey.

Herbert Hoover Jr. has been a ham since he was 12 but never had a station in the White House when his father was president. He did broadcast from the Bureau of Standards when his father was secretary of commerce in the early 1920s. Hoover Jr. now is president of the American Radio Relay League, an organization of amateur radio operators.

Khrushchev, Poles Plan Celebration

WARSAW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived in Warsaw today to help Poland celebrate its 20th anniversary as a Communist nation and to confer with three other Red chiefs of Eastern Europe.

The Soviet premier exchanged kisses on both cheeks with Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. Khrushchev arrived minutes after Czechoslovak President Antonin Novotny and East German Communist leader Walter Ulbricht.

Khrushchev is to spend two days in Warsaw taking part in events marking the birth of Poland's Communist government in Soviet-held Lublin on July 22, 1944.

Police officials said Khrushchev's crammed schedule left little time for political talks but the communist leaders are expected to find time to consult on Communist bloc problems including the Moscow-Peking split.

The Kremlin has indicated it may be on the verge of issuing a call for preparations for a world conference of Communist parties despite Chinese threats to boycott such a parley.

The Kremlin told the Chinese in an impatient letter last week that it wanted preparations for a world meeting to begin without delay.

Novotny and Ulbricht, Moscow's staunchest supporters in the dispute, have repeatedly endorsed the idea of a showdown meeting.

Gomulka has showed signs of wavering, apparently sharing the fears of other Communist leaders that such a meeting could do irreparable damage to the world Communist movement.
